FLOYD ROBERTS SETS NEW RECORD IN SPEED CLASSIC

Spectator Is Killed When Struck by Tire Thrown 100 Feet Through Air From Careening Car.

SECOND PLACE WON BY WILBUR SHAW

Winner Drives Distance With Only One Stop in 4 Hours, 15 Minutes.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—(P)—Floyd Roberts, 38-year-old aviation engineer of Van Nuys, Cal., streaked around the 2 1/2-mile Indianapolis motor speedway today at record-breaking speed to win the annual 500-mile race by five miles in the twenty-sixth running of the famous classic.

Roberts, winning his first major victory in 22 years of racing, most of them on dirt tracks, was never farther back than fourth after the first 50 miles. He went into the lead at 200 miles, lost it temporarily to Jimmy Snyder, the "Flying Milkman" from Chicago, and then regained it at 400 miles and held it to the finish.

Makes One Stop.

The winner piloted his stubborn, red racer, a new four-cylinder creation, across the line in the amazing average speed of 117.200 miles an hour. This eclipsed the previous record of 113.580 established by Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, in winning the 1937 race. Roberts, driving the entire distance without relief and making only one 30-second stop for a quick tire change and gasoline at 267 miles, covered the distance in 4:15:58.40.

The race was clouded by the killing of Everett Spence, 33-year-old probation officer of Terre Haute, Ind. Spence, standing on a truck with a party of ten others, was struck by a wheel which flew off a careening race car piloted by Emil Andres, of Chicago. Spence was dead when taken to a hospital.

Car Turns Over 3 Times.

Andres' car, traveling at a terrific speed, hit the southeast lower retaining wall, turned over three times and came to rest in the infield. The right front wheel flew high in the air and traveled 100 feet before it struck Spence. It was the thirty-fourth death in a quarter of a century of racing at this famous course and was the second fatality to a spectator.

Andres, rushed to a hospital, was found to be suffering from a crushed chest, possible brain concussion and a broken nose. At almost the same time as the Andres accident, Ira Hall, veteran driver from Terre Haute, Ind., hit a wall for the second time in the race. His car was not badly damaged and he escaped injury.

Roberts, who made his first appearance in an Indianapolis race in 1934, won about $38,000 as the result of his victory. He received $20,000 as first prize and the balance in lap and accessory prizes. The crowd was under the 150,000 attendance of a year ago. Finishing five miles back of

250 in Nation Meet Death By Violence

149 Are Killed in Traffic Accidents During Extended 'Week End.'

By The Associated Press.

Violent deaths took at least 250 lives in the United States during the extended, 72-hour Memorial Day "week end," but the holiday period still seemed safer than in 1937.

With 45 states reporting, the death total yesterday lagged far behind last year's three-day toll of 356.

Traffic accidents, as usual, accounted for the bulk of fatalities—149; but the opening of the outdoor sports season also brought 58 drownings. Fire killed 10 and miscellaneous accidents caused 33 other deaths.

Five members of a negro miner's family of eight at Manchester, Ky., were drowned when a cloudburst swept away their home and the other three members were missing.

Race Spectator Killed.

A wheel thrown off by a crashing race car hurtled into the throng at Indianapolis speedway and killed one man. A boy was fatally injured by a blow from a baseball bat.

Lightning struck down three persons. Airplane crashes killed four and 13 were fatally shot, one while hunting. Four suicides were reported and five persons were killed in a single auto accident in Illinois.

While hundreds died, at least 41 were rescued from fishing and pleasure craft foundering in heavy seas off Long Island, New York.

Deaths by States.

Total deaths from all causes by states included:
Alabama 5, Arizona 2, Arkansas 5, California 13, Colorado 6, Connecticut 5, Delaware 2, Florida 4, Georgia 4, Idaho 2, Illinois 22, Indiana 7, Iowa 5, Kansas 3, Kentucky 5, Louisiana 2, Maine 8, Maryland 3, Massachusetts 7, Michigan 8, Minnesota 6, Mississippi 1, Missouri 8, Montana 1, Nebraska 3, New Hampshire 1, New Jersey 6, New Mexico 4, New York 13, North Carolina 3, North Dakota 1, Ohio 18, Oklahoma 11, Oregon 8, Pennsylvania 17, Rhode Island 1, South Carolina 2, Tennessee 1, Texas 12, Utah 1, Vermont 2, Virginia 2, Washington 1, Wisconsin 8, Wyoming 1.

Compromise Ends Akron Rubber Strike

AKRON, Ohio, May 30.—(P)—

Leaders of Goodyear local of the United Rubber Workers announced tonight that nearly 3,000 union members voted by a ratio of 9-1 to end the strike at Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company and return to work tomorrow.

Allan Haywood, New York CIO leader, addressed the union members and urged acceptance of the recommendations of the executive board which sought approval of concessions made by the company and return to work.

A union official said the picket line would be withdrawn. The company plant is scheduled to open at 6 a. m.

State's Best Speller in Capital Asks Friends To 'Cross Fingers for Me'

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Demure little Betty Glenn, 13-year-old DeKalb county spelling champion, of Georgia, had but one request to make of her southern friends today when she reached Washington to pit her word knowledge against 21 other young champions from all over the country in the national spelling bee which opens here tomorrow.

And that request was: "Everybody keep your fingers crossed for me tomorrow from the time you get out of bed. With them double crossed after you are thoroughly awakened, tune in at 1 p. m., over the Columbia network for the finals."

Accompanied by her teacher, Mrs. W. H. Bohannon and her mother, Mrs. A. C. Glenn, Betty

CITY ASSESSORS REPORT INCREASE IN VALUATIONS

Bright Financial Picture for Atlanta Seen in 1938 as Returns on Property Show Big Gain.

AD VALOREM TAXES WILL AID REVENUE

Other Upturns Are Shown in Real Estate and Personal Appraisals

By FRANK DRAKE.

The financial picture of Atlanta for 1938 appeared bright yesterday as gains of more than $2,100,000 in real estate valuations and $6,700,000 in personal valuations were reported to Mayor Hartsfield by the city board of tax assessors.

The assessors predicted a new revenue gain of about $75,000 from ad valorem taxes this year, which Hartsfield said would be partly offset by losses in revenue from other sources.

"The gains showed by the tax digest indicate that the city will end the year in good financial shape, rounding out 1938 with approximately the same revenue as received last year," Hartsfield said.

Real Estate Increases.

Total valuation of real estate and public utilities, (taking utilities on the same basis as given in 1937), is $249,257,546, or $2,158,581 more than it was for 1937. Current returns on personal property amounts to $62,517,133, as compared with $55,816,533 for the same items last year, the assessors, J. C. Little, Leo Suddey and J. Sid Tiller, told the mayor.

The gain in real estate valuations is on new buildings, improvements and repairs and does not represent increases in assessments, Hartsfield said. "To the contrary, many assessments have been lowered," he said.

The personal property increase is largely on automobiles, merchandise, notes and accounts, machinery and equipment and furnishings and fixtures.

However, the personality total does not include valuations of property exempted from taxation or that which is handled by the state, such as household and kitchen furniture, stocks and bonds, mortgages and money. Revenue from intangibles will not be known until later in the year and probably will not be collected at all by the city this year since it is not payable until December 21, Hartsfield pointed out.

For the city to break even on intangibles, in comparison with 1937 figures, a total of $102,000,000 worth of intangibles must have been returned to the state from the city of Atlanta and the city must receive one-half of the three-mill levy against such property, it was said.

The assessors also pointed out that the city's loss on household

Levines Bury Their Boy—Where His Mutilated Body Was Discovered

The bleak and litter-strewn scene directly above is where the mutilated body of Peter Levine was discovered Sunday night, in Long Island sound. In the upper left is Murray Levine, father of the kidnapped and slain lad, pictured in his New York law offices. At right is Mrs. Levine, Peter's mother, as she rode to funeral services at New Rochelle, N. Y., yesterday. The body was cremated.

METHODISTS SUE TO KILL CHARTER

Revocation Sought by Prominent Group Supporting Parent Church.

Motion to revoke the charter granted recently to a group of Atlantans as the "Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Inc.," yesterday was filed in Fulton superior court by 11 members of the original southern branch of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The objections to the charter set out that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has existed as a religious organization since 1845 and exists now under the same name.

"The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has not abandoned its name and does not intend to do so," the petition stated.

Bishop Is Petitioner.

Setting out that they represented the "vast membership" of the southern branch of the church, the petitioners seeking revocation are Bishop J. L. Decell, named bishop of Georgia and Alabama branches of the church in Birmingham recently; T. D. Ellis, minister, member of the South Georgia conference and secretary of the Board of Church Extension; Charles C. Jarrell, minister and presiding elder of the Atlanta district of the North Georgia conference.

Smith Johnson, North Georgia conference lay leader; Jere A. Wells, lay member; Harvey W. Cox, as president of Emory University; the Rev. W. A. Shelton, pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Mrs. L. M. Awtrey, chairman of the Women's Missionary Society of the North Georgia conference; J. V. Wellborn, lay member; Mrs. J. N. McEachern, lay member, and Walter McElreath, as "duly appointed and authorized attorney" for the membership.

Oppose Anti-Unionists.

The group is seeking revocation of the charter granted May 20 to G. Seals Aiken, Atlanta attorney, and a group of Atlantans opposing unification of southern and northern branches of the church. Last available report on the

Searchers Baffled in Hunt For Clues in Levine Death

Examining Doctor Declares Kidnaped Boy May Have Been Garroted; Tide Charts Indicate Body Tossed Overboard Out at Sea.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 30.—(P)—The possibility that garroting might have been the primary cause of the death of kidnaped Peter Levine was suggested tonight by Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester county medical examiner.

He emphasized, however, that it was a conclusion that might never be established. Peter's headless body, bound in wire, the hands and feet also gone, was washed upon the shores of Long Island sound late yesterday—three months and more from the day he disappeared.

A ransom payment of $60,000 had been demanded originally by his kidnapers. It finally was whittled down to $30,000—a sum the father, Murray Levine, a New York city lawyer, stood ready to pay.

As the broken Levine family held brief and private funeral services, police and federal agents meticulously went over geodetic charts of Long Island sound and studied the record of tides and winds for several days after the date of 12-year-old Peter's disappearance—February 24.

They emerged from their charts, said Police Detective George Reifemberger, with one agreed conclusion—that Peter's body had been dropped at sea, either from rowboat or yacht.

As to suspects, said Reifemberger, disconsolately shrugging his shoulders, there was none.

"I have made out a death certificate certifying death to asphyxiation by drowning—with a large question mark after it," Dr. Squire said.

"I have described it as a homicide and checked the time of death, as (sometime in) March, 1938. I had to give the cause of death so the body could be buried—hence the question marks."

"We are examining microscopically the boy's lungs, heart, kidneys, liver, spleen and stomach. I have also preserved parts of the

PRIMARY ENTRIES CLOSE TOMORROW

33 Are Candidates for Superior Court Judgeships and 19 for State House.

By The Associated Press.

With only a day and a half left before closing of entry lists for the September 14 state primary, three candidates for Governor, two for United States senate and 19 for statehouse officers had qualified last night.

The state Democratic executive committee also had received fees and qualifications from 33 candidates for judges of superior court circuits and five for solicitors general.

Fees from all candidates except the court circuit entrants totaled $6,500. The committee retains this money. All fees from circuit court candidates, however, is prorated back to counties making up the circuits, based on the county unit vote. The total to date in this division is $9,500.

The deadline for qualifying is tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon, central standard time. Gubernatorial candidates qualify.

Amnesia Victim at Tucson Thinks He's Married Man From Georgia

TUCSON, May 30.—(P)—A man registered here as E. Conner, who believes himself to be J. C. Morris Jr., 26, of Vidalia, Ga., awaited today word from Georgia that may help him piece together his past history lost, he believes, through amnesia.

Part of his memory, he said, was restored by a fall and part by hearing a radio program, but most of it is still a blank.

The young man said today he has no recollection of leaving Georgia April 29, the day the younger Morris disappeared, nor of anything that happened until he was in Santa Barbara, Cal., but in his clothes was found a bus ticket purchased May 3 in El Paso for Los Angeles, but never punched by an operator.

He said he remembered everything that happened since his arrival here, and had been trying to get a job. Last Wednesday he fell in the lobby of his hotel and was unconscious for a time, he said, and since then memory has slowly returned.

He said he thinks he has a wife, he cannot remember his father, but believes his mother is dead. He may have been a school teacher, he said, but he also thinks he may have been a traveling salesman.

He said he had no recollection of having worked recently and he still has a little money, but he believed he was robbed of a watch, a North Carolina University ring and possibly a car which he thinks he had in the past.

"It has been a terrible tussle," he said, "trying to find these things out again. When I was

GAS STATION CHAIN OPERATOR IS GIVEN 2 CONTACT NOTES

Child Snatched From Its Bed, at Princeton, After Mother Puts Child To Sleep and Leaves Home.

G-MEN ARE CALLED, BUT HOLD ALOOF

J. Edgar Hoover Reported To Be On Way From New York by Airplane.

By The United Press.

PRINCETON, Fla., May 31.—

(Tuesday).—J. B. Cash, owner of a chain of gasoline filling stations whose five-and-a-half-year-old son was snatched from his home here Saturday night, was reported early today to be attempting to contact the kidnapers. Princeton is near Miami.

The parents and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who were called into the case immediately, refused to give out any information besides to confirm that the child was missing.

Mother Not At Home.

The child reportedly disappeared within the space of an hour Saturday night while the mother was at a near-by general store and filling station owned by the Cashes, helping her husband count the day's receipts before closing.

Two notes were said to have been found by the Cashes demanding $10,000 for the child's return. One of the notes reportedly contained a map with directions for a meeting place to make a ransom contact, which Cash was said to have been attempting to establish late last night.

Although G-men were playing an active role in the case, it was reported they would not interfere with the abductors. A plane-load of special agents were said to have arrived here.

Reports from New York said that J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, was en route here in connection with the Cash case.

Read Him To Sleep.

Although definite details were lacking, it was said that the child was taken from a rear bedroom in the Cash home, shortly after the mother left him at 9:30 p. m. Saturday. She had put him to bed at 9 and read the comics to him until he fell asleep.

Neighbors living above the Cashes were quoted as saying they heard noises from the bedroom below, but thought it was the child's parents moving about.

Pope Pius To Observe 81st Birthday Today

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, May 30.—(P)—Pope Pius XI will pass his 81st birthday quietly tomorrow in his summer palace overlooking Lake Albano.

Except for a low mass in his private chapel and reception of a few of his intimate associates, the pontiff expected scarcely to mark the day.

F.D.R. IS EN ROUTE BACK TO CAPITAL

President Will Confer With Congressional Leaders at White House Today.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 30.—(P)—President Roosevelt wound up three days of rest and recreation at home tonight and headed back to the White House for a conference tomorrow morning with congressional leaders.

The President's reorganization program probably will be one of the topics discussed at that meeting, to be attended by Vice President Garner, Speaker Bankhead and Majority Leaders Barkley and Rayburn, of the senate and house.

The congressional leaders are expected to report to Mr. Roosevelt on the possibility of enactment of the three phases of the program passed by the house and now awaiting senate action.

These phases are: Provision for six administrative assistants to the President, re-enactment of certain reorganization powers given the President in 1933 and creation of a new department of public welfare—which, if created, Harry Hopkins, the works progress administrator, is expected to head.

Rivers Sets June 19 As "Father's Day"

Hard-working Father is going to come into his own again this year—for one day at least.

Governor Rivers yesterday issued a proclamation designating Sunday, June 19, as the official 1938 "Father's Day"—when father is to be honored as mother is on her day.

The Governor called upon the people of the state to join in the tribute to the head of the family. Father's Day is now observed nationally.

RAIL TAX AGENT WILL RETIRE HERE

J. W. Smith Connected With Southern Since 1881.

After 57 years in railroad service, J. W. Smith, tax agent for Southern Railway System with headquarters in Atlanta, will retire tomorrow.

Smith began his railroad career in 1881 as telegraph operator for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company at Staunton, Va., when 18 years old. He entered the service of the old East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad, now a part of the Southern System, November 1, 1888, as telegrapher at Atlanta, and has served the Southern continuously since that date.

At one time he was chief clerk to the late Colonel A. B. Andrews, first vice president at Raleigh, N. C. Smith was appointed tax agent of the Southern Railway System July 1, 1915, and has been stationed in Atlanta since that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith reside at 14 The Prado and are the parents of Miss Ruth Dabney Smith, concert violinist. He is a charter member of Sudan temple of the Shrine at Newbern, N. C., and has always taken an active interest in fraternal matters. He is also an elder in the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta.

EMORY GRADUATES OF 1915 TO MEET

23d Annual Reunion Stated by Doctors.

Graduates of the medical school of Emory University in the class of 1915 will hold their 23d annual reunion at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Wincoff hotel.

Approximately 30 members of the class will attend the reunion, Dr. Edgar H. Greene, said, including 19 from Atlanta. The meeting will be held in connection with Emory commencement exercises and the annual medical clinic which is being held from May 31 to June 3.

Among those on the program is Dr. J. S. Wood, of the United States Public Health Service, who will speak on "Medical Service With the American Indian."

Dr. C. D. Briscoe, of Ancon, Canal Zone, will speak on "Medical Science in the Tropics." Other speakers include Dr. Richard Binion, of Milledgeville, president of the medical association of the A. & W. P., and Georgia railroads, and Dr. W. C. McWhorter, of Anderson, S. C.

HARRY H. M'ILHENNY'S LAST RITES CONDUCTED

Funeral services for Harry H. M'Ilhenney, 75, retired assistant vice president of the Galena-Signal Oil Company, who died early Sunday in a private hospital here, were held yesterday morning in Spring Hill, conducted by Canon Charles F. Schilling. Burial was in West View cemetery.

Mr. M'Ilhenney came here from New Orleans in 1920. He was born in Raleigh, N. C., during the War Between the States, but spent most of his early life in Wilmington. He was a member of the Episcopal church.

KENDRICK QUALIFIES FOR LEGISLATURE

Fulton Representative Says He Expects Important Local Legislation.

Representative W. C. Kendrick, of Fulton county, qualified as a candidate for re-election yesterday, issuing a statement at the same time declaring that he expected important local legislation at the next session of the assembly and pledging himself to act for all of the people of the county in passing on the legislation.

Kendrick is without announced opposition. He is supported by the Atlanta Federation of Labor and by railway labor organizations.

He qualified and paid his entry fee to Secretary J. Wilson Parker, of the Fulton county Democratic executive committee. Kendrick's campaign statement follows:

"In seeking another term as one of Fulton county's representatives in the general assembly of Georgia I wish not only to thank the people of this county, who honored me two years ago, but to pledge my best service if they send me back to the legislature.

"If elected, I will represent all the people of Fulton county and will do my best to protect and promote their interest and welfare.

"Matters of vital importance to Fulton county and to the state of Georgia will be the subject of legislation at the next session of the general assembly and I promise to base my consideration of these matters on the well-being of all our citizens."

Retail Sales for April

Atlanta's April retail sales showed a slight gain over March, but were below the corresponding figures for last year, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce announced yesterday.

Reports covering 423 independent stores throughout the state showed a 2 per cent gain over March, but a loss of 10.5 per cent as compared with April, 1937.

The April gain in Atlanta was 1.3 per cent as compared with March totals and the loss from April a year ago was 6.6 per cent.

STUDENT NURSES OFF FOR CAPITAL

Ten Leave Georgia Baptist for Study of Children's Diseases.

Ten student nurses at Georgia Baptist hospital entrained for the nation's capital yesterday, their objective a three-month course in pediatrics, not politics.

Pediatrics, they explained, is a study of children's diseases, and after all, if you're going to be a good nurse, you've got to know how to treat kids as well as grownups.

It's all a part of the hospital's training course for nurses. They will spend three months at the Children's hospital in Washington, where they will learn all there is to know about young America. Then they will return and a similar group will be sent up for the course.

W. D. Barker, superintendent of Georgia Baptist hospital, explained that this is the first year the nurses have been sent to the Washington hospital for the pediatrics study. Previously, they were trained at the Eggleston hospital in Atlanta.

The group which left yesterday is composed of Misses Lucile Mann, Alice Futrelle, Shirley Rowe, Loraine Harrell, Morienne Braddy, Pearl Cole, Nell King, Clyde Hogsed, Ola Mae McCurry and Elizabeth Hight.

DAIRYMEN MAY BUY EXCHANGE BOTTLES

State Board Rescinds Order
Affecting Macon, Savannah Dealers.

The State Milk Control Board has rescinded an order that dairymen in the Macon and Savannah milk sheds must use their own bottles. Director Charles Duncan said today.

Duncan said the order was the same as a law which has been on the statute books since 1933 and was not included in the 1937 act establishing the control board.

He said cards had been mailed dairymen in the Macon area saying the board did not plan to operate or supervise a milk bottle exchange.

These exchanges, the director explained, must be organized and operated by co-operative agreement between the local dairymen.

An exchange in Birmingham, Ala., is saving dairymen there "about $200,000 a year," Duncan said a Birmingham producer told him.

FORUM TO FEATURE MADDOX EXERCISES

OGLETHORPE GIVEN WATKINS PORTRAIT

Painting of Prominent Attorney Unveiled.

A portrait of Edgar Watkins, prominent Atlanta attorney and chairman of the executive committee of Oglethorpe University, was hung in the university library yesterday by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of the institution. The portrait, painted in oils by Charles Frederick Neale, of Marietta, was given to the university by an anonymous friend and was presented by Robert H. Jones Jr., at ceremonies held in the university library Saturday. It was accepted by Mrs. A. H. Banker, of the women's board of directors, and unveiled by little Misses Mary Louise and Elizabeth Watkins, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Watkins Jr.

The painting will hang in the university library beside that of Sidney Lanier.

WINN ARRIVES TODAY FOR MEDICAL REUNION

Lieutenant Colonel Dean F. Winn, chief of the surgical service of the army at Fort Sam Houston, will arrive in Atlanta today to attend the reunion tomorrow of the medical class of 1910, Emory University.

Colonel Winn formerly practiced in Atlanta with the late Dr. Edward P. Jones and is well-known here. He joined the army in 1916 and since then has served in France, Russia, Panama, Manila and many of the larger army posts in this country. While in Russia he married Miss Alexandra Hoffman. He will be the guest of his sister, Mrs. C. P. Roberts, on Adams street, Decatur.

FUNERAL CONDUCTED FOR CHARLES D. SMITH

Funeral services for Charles D. Smith, 64, widely-known resident of East Atlanta, who died Sunday after a long illness, were held yesterday afternoon in the Martha Brown Memorial church, conducted by the Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt. Burial was in the Bascom

Methodist churchyard, in Cherokee county.

A native of Bascom, Mr. Smith came to Atlanta as a child. He was a member of the board of stewards and served on important committees of the Martha Brown Memorial church for many years. He resided at 1127 Glenwood avenue, S. E.

THIS IS COTTON WEEK

This week, all over the nation, is being observed as Cotton Week. It is a period of primary importance to the south and to all whose social or business connections encompass this area.

It is the purpose of Cotton Week to increase the consumption, by all Americans, of all the products of cotton. Thus, by creating a greater demand, to help in the melting of the cotton surplus, to raise the price for the raw product and to make it profitable for the cotton farmer to devote his acres to the cultivation of the staple.

All the stores of the nation this week are offering specials in cotton goods. Everything from a cotton towel to the most elaborate of style creations may be found, displayed and specially priced to tempt the pocketbook of the most thrifty of purchasers. It is hoped, this week, that the woman who normally buys one cotton article will buy two or more.

But it is not only in the familiar "cotton goods" displays that products of the whitened fibers of the south may be found. Cotton today enters into innumerable processes of manufacture and the material is found in the most surprising articles.

It is, for instance, possible to find floor tile made chiefly of cotton. Composition flooring, imitation wood, roofing materials, wall board, waterproof cloth, synthetic resin, celluloid, rayon, wax, innumerable oils and fats are only a scant few of the things used by modern man which come, primarily, from cotton.

Science, day by day, is adding to the list. New uses are constantly being found and, it may be, the problem of cotton's shrinking export markets will be solved through the enlarged domestic demand resultant from this research.

In any event Cotton Week should serve to emphasize the many ways in which cotton may be consumed. If every citizen, from housewife to construction contractor, will learn the lesson of Cotton Week, the result should be a stimulus to the crop with good effects felt in every state, every county, every city, every town and hamlet of the cotton south.

SENSIBLE VIEWPOINT

That business is not averse to a reasonable amount of regulation by the government is frequently expressed in public statements of industrial leaders. It is only when restrictions prove a handicap instead of a help in accomplishing the purposes of honest business—continued existence and making a fair profit—that strenuous objections are heard. In an address before the annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute last week, its president, T. M. Girdler, made this clear. It is reasonable to assume that his viewpoint is now representative of big business as a whole:

"There can be no objection on the part of business to fair and reasonable government regulation," said Mr. Girdler. "In this complex age, industry needs for its guidance certain rules and regulations by government, but rules that are not subject to constant and upsetting change."

Any man responsible for the successful operation of a business, large or small, cannot help but feel that this is a true expression of industrial sentiment. The main objection in the present situation is that something new is either started or threatened before the last set of regulations has been properly understood and digested. Industry, as well as government, should be permitted to lay its plans far into the future, based on the expectation of continued solvency, otherwise stability for both employer and employee goes out of the window.

Since the objective of government and industry is the same at the present time, according to their spokesmen, viz., pulling the country out of the economic mire, there is no reason why the goal should not be reached.

Wasn't the Geneva situation confused enough without Haile Selassie ringing in dignity and restraint?

On the next trip to Geneva, we can only suggest that Haile Selassie tell it to the Travelers' Aid Society.

In these later dispatches from Tokyo, the reference to military circles may mean under the eyes.

Through the lull and all, our geniuses are not idle. A folding bicycle has been invented for that long trek from the parking space to the office.

So many legal precedents have lately crumbled, some are wondering how that court will rule on young Coogan, and the old maxim, Mother knows best.

THE TEMPLE OF A STRANGE GOD

It seems strikingly appropriate that "The Temple of the God of the Fifth Hell" now constitutes a trap for some 4,000 to 5,000 Japanese troops under Major General Doihara who, at least as much as any officer of the defunct Emperor, represents the militaristic mind of Nippon.

"The Lawrence of Manchuria" can probably escape the trap, but in so doing will be forced to desert his troops to the hands of the Chinese who, happily, have shown more of the quality of mercy than the invaders. On the other hand, his tactical genius may turn the tables on the now closing-in forces of Chiang Kai-shek, or reinforcements now being rushed to the front may find themselves able to crush through the encircling legions. In the "Temple of the God of the Fifth Hell," however, is being written another chapter in the story of a growing Chinese resistance. One which, in poetic justice, seems destined to end in success for the Legions of the Dragon.

Japan has entered boldly into this phase of the Chinese campaign, one which military observers consider critical, with its army driving deeper into the hinterland, extending already thin lines of supply to the constant threat of guerrilla bands. Quite obviously, however, the guiding hands of the invasion expect to counteract this bold move by an expedition striking inland from Amoy to cut the Canton-Hankow railroad, over which have been moving huge quantities of war materials to the Chinese armies in the north. Coupled with this movement, now apparently poised, have been the vicious air raids on Canton itself. "Military necessity" will be the answer, but helpless civilians know little of military necessity that strikes death in crowded cities.

The reorganization of the Japanese cabinet, assuring greater intensity for the China campaign, may be taken as an indication of the increasingly desperate internal condition of the Japanese government. The patriotic spirit will be whipped to a new fever pitch and a headlong, reckless handling for the remaining phases of the war may be expected. In China the reverse is true. While reserve funds have dwindled, it is obvious that sufficient support has been received to insure maintenance of resistance and constantly improving armaments.

The die has been cast. Should Japan eventually win, it will remain to be seen whether the strain of the campaign has been too great for the internal economy. Should Japan lose, the nation will revert to the status of a second-rate industrial nation. But what of a victorious China? Will this prove a greater threat to the world than that of small Japan?

PSEUDO ECONOMISTS

One notable contribution from the ranks of the pseudo economists toward solving the nation's economic woes is the brilliant notion that there are simply too many people in the country. Just eliminate, theoretically, of course, 10,000,000 of the population and the trouble will be over, according to this authority. All the unemployed on the relief rolls would be removed at one fell swoop.

Since nothing should be overlooked in an emergency, perhaps the idea would stand a bit of exploring. Fortunately an analysis can be carried on without actually resorting to the recommended drastic process of elimination. At once it is discovered the people are headed in the wrong direction. Nothing is being left undone to save lives, thereby increasing, instead of reducing, the population. Of course, this trend would have to be reversed at once. It is one of the very evils said to be causing all the trouble.

But to get back to the proposed disappearing act. Just what would happen if 10,000,000 people obligingly dropped out of sight overnight? The "economist" says everything would be "hunky-dory." But for some reason he seems to have overlooked one salient fact. The 10,000,000 who are to so patriotically disappear to save the country, also eat, wear clothes, drink and swear like other folks.

So the sudden removal of their consuming power would throw the country into an economic tail-spin. When it landed, if it ever did, it would be in the same relative economic position it was in prior to the disappearing act. The relief rolls would have to be revived to care for approximately 10,000,000 former workers thrown out of jobs. Presumably the operation would then be repeated.

Following the idea to a logical conclusion, although one must be careful not to be too logical when dealing with a pseudo economist, the whole aggravating problem of unemployment would eventually be solved. By the simple process of elimination there wouldn't be anybody on relief or out of work, because there wouldn't be anybody living here. The country could then go back to the Indians!

Editorial of the Day

TOWARD HIS GOAL
(From the Charleston News.)

French troops move to vague destinations in Libya. Because Franco-Italian negotiations have broken down. And they have broken down, not only because Mussolini has suddenly demanded that France recognize Franco as sole master of all Spain, but also because he has at last moved openly against French territorial integrity by demanding "equal governing rights in Tunisia." It is precisely as though France had demanded equal governing rights in Libya or Ethiopia. She has held Tunisia by right of conquest ever since 1881, and the Italians have had no rights there since the collapse of the old Roman Empire in North Africa.

But this is significant of more than the dictator's gall. If you'll look at your map, you'll see that Tunisia is the eastern tip of the great hump on the back of North Africa, which belongs to France, that it lies directly across from the southeastern tip of Sicily, which is heavily fortified with 16-inch guns, and that the island of Pantellaria, also heavily fortified with 16-inch guns, lies about midway between the two. Now imagine Mussolini ensconced in Tunisia, too; then go on to look at the positions of Mallorca and Sardinia; and recall that France has never installed great batteries of German and Italian 16-inch guns behind Algerias—guns which are not only capable of sweeping the Strait of Gibraltar but which also command the Rock of Gibraltar itself—and you'll have an excellent portrait of that absolute mastery of the Mediterranean which Mussolini has always confessed openly he meant to have.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

AUTO FACTORY SHUTDOWN WASHINGTON, May 30.—The factories of Ford, Chrysler and General Motors will shut their gates for at least two months this summer. The busy assembly lines will come to a full stop. Hundreds of thousands of workers will lose their jobs. A whole vast industrial empire will collapse into cold stagnation.

For weeks, rumors have reached Washington that the new depression would force a two-month shutdown on the motor makers. Even in the black summer of 1932, the industry's between-season paralysis was less prolonged. High officials refused to credit the rumors. But late last week a motor parts company executive brought word to a meeting of the Federal Reserve Board that Ford and General Motors would close.

In consternation, New Deal economists hastily checked the news in Detroit. They discovered that not only Ford and General Motors, but Chrysler as well would participate in the shutdown. They were told that nothing but an extraordinary economic rebound could avert the disaster.

TERROR AND DISASTER Disaster is a mild word for a two months' shutdown in the motor industry. Within the motor empire itself, it is likely to produce the most serious social consequences. A whole population eating the bitter bread of unemployment; great cities suffering business coma; unrest, perhaps even riots among the workers—the picture is not a pretty one. And the economic consequences will be no better. No other industry consumes more raw materials and finished products than the motor industry. The paralysis of its output will spread through all the members of the economic system.

If disaster is not too strong a word for the two-month motor shutdown, terror weakly describes the emotion produced here by news of it. The administration's fiscal managers and chief economists see less light ahead than at any time since 1933.

True, they have not abandoned hope of an upturn. They still believe that in the end better times will be produced by the new spending-lending program. But in the meantime, the program too small, too likely to be long in starting. Before the program takes effect, they fear a cruel liquidation, fully as bad as that in the worst Hoover year. They curse the conservative budget balancers, like Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., and Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC, who put off and pared down the spending program. Yet they are powerless to do much more than curse.

SPEND, SPEND, SPEND The very violence of emotion among these high officials offers the best hope that their fears are slightly hysterical. That the fears are there, cannot be questioned.

Already, some public indication of the feelings has been given in the Atlantic City speech of Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board. Eccles solemnly warned that the spending program might be a bridge too far. He was only echoing the views of WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins; Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Chairman William O. Douglas of the SEC, and the four leading economists, Leon Henderson, of WPA; Mordecai Ezekiel, of agriculture; Isidore Lubin, of the Labor Department, and Laughlin Currie, of the Federal Reserve Board.

Of late this group of men and certain powerful allies have been clamoring at the White House. They have considered the revival of the tight-fisted Jesse Jones from control of lending. They have pleaded for a large allocation to WPA—at least $2,000,000,000 to be spent freely, as the old CWA leaf-raking money was, without means tests or required local contribution. They have proposed still easier equipment loans to railroads and utilities.

Some of them have been asked that anyone willing to undertake low cost housing be allowed 15 per cent of free WPA labor. And others have gone so far as to suggest that the President propose a still larger spending program even before congress has approved the present one.

SHAKING STRATEGISTS The central argument of the gloomy spenders is that the President should publicly accept the old compensatory spending theory. This theory, championed by Chairman Eccles, is that, when private expenditure contracts, government expenditure must take up the slack, contracting again as private expenditure increased.

Thus far, the President has not given in. But there is another, and to a politician, equally important aspect of the situation. The elections take place in November, as everyone knows. The New Deal strategists have been counting positively on a pre-election upturn. And now that the New Deal economists believe there will be no upturn for at least six months, now that they predict a Hooverian liquidation first, the strategists are shaking in their shoes. A School That Failed.
It was a city in Georgia. Not Atlanta. The Works Progress Administration had a bright idea for a project. Started a school for negro cooks and maids, the servants in the homes of the community.

The housewives who employed the potential students co-operated in every way possible. Arranged for their own servants to be free to go to the school at class hours. And suggested they should go.

But the school failed. For the cooks and maids would not attend.

No one could understand why. At last one of the ladies asked her own cook what was the objection to the school.

And the girl told her they didn't like the teachers. You see the faculty consisted almost exclusively of trained social workers. I suspect they'd been imported from the north. If not, they weren't the type, in any event to attract to a school southern negroes the domestic arts.

This particular cook said it the teaching staff had consisted of, especially trained, negroes, they'd have had the school filled to capacity.

She told her mistress: "Those teachers don't understand us. They call us 'My dear,' and expect us to be like that. And it's not respectful to decent negroes for white folks to talk thataway."

F. D. R. Asked

To Act Reported.

It is reported that a fellow in New York, name of James Woodhull, has written a letter to President Roosevelt asking the nation's chief executive to find him a wife. A wife for Woodhull, I mean. Everyone knows Mr. F. D. R. is married.

Frank Sullivan, writing in The Nation, warns Mr. Woodhull of the danger in such a mode of seeking matrimony. Mr. Sullivan's language cannot be bettered, at least not by such as I, so here is his warning paragraph, verbatim:

"In New York, James Woodhull wrote the President asking Mr. Roosevelt to drop everything and find him a wife. James apparently does not want to get married in a hurry or he does not read the papers. Doesn't he know that Mr. Roosevelt were to pick a bride for him, her name would have to be submitted to congress for confirmation, and the moment that happened, Representative John J. O'Connor, the greatest champion of the people's liberties since Father Coghlin, Jeremiah Cross and Donald Duck, would rise in his wrath and send himself three thousand night letters demanding that Woodhull be preserved from the perils of dictatorship."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.
From The Constitution of Saturday, May 19, 1913:
"Norfolk, Va., May 30.—Accompanied by rain and hail a cyclonic-like windstorm passed over this section this afternoon and a number of lives were reported lost."

And Fifty Years Ago

From The Constitution of Thursday, May 31, 1888:
"Montgomery, Ala., May 30.—(Special).—There is blood on the moon that shines for the Vickers family in Montgomery, for the affair is not a little sensational."

World's Window To Those Who Can Make a Fool of a Man But Also Make a Man a Fool

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Hitler's Prophecy.

NEW YORK.—At the height of the tension over Czechoslovakia a few days ago, the Fuehrer, chancellor of the German Reich, went to Munich to open some agricultural experimental school. In his speech he did not mention the Czech elections, but dropped a remark of far greater significance than anything he could have said on the most recent crisis. Hitler told his audience: "Before five years are over, at the utmost six, all this will be over. . . . Europe will be settled definitely and we will have peace for five hundred or for a thousand years."

He did not expatiate, he did not say how this blessed state of peace was to be attained or what it was to happen in the meantime to make it possible. Five years from now it will be 1943, six years hence it will be 1944. Before that time something is to occur that will usher in the millennium? Dr. Goebbels, the minister of enlightenment and propaganda, has also told us a vague hint of better days to come. In announcing wage reductions in some branch of German industry, he said to the workers: "You must accept this reduction. . . . I know what it means. . . . You must accept it well aware that your children will have less food. . . . I will promise you this much. . . . Only a little time more, at the utmost four or five years and you and all Germany will be sitting on top of the world."

On top of the world? In what the Germans call Realpolitik this can mean only one thing. Hitler expects to dominate Europe before a decade is over; that is to say he expects to have found a market for German manufactured articles. For that is fundamentally the significance of the colossal rearmament campaign and the pressure politics which he is employing on his neighbors.

Peace, armaments have no meaning in itself. It is an expensive game and cannot go on forever. There is a purpose behind it all; and the purpose is not merely to rid the German people of the economic complex of a defeated nation. Hitler is making all those vast expenditures and drilling the whole nation for one thing only: for the conquest of markets. And he knows perfectly well where those markets are located. They are to the east of Germany: in Russia.

But between Russia and Germany are a whole bloc of countries: Poland, the Baltic states, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania. A path has to be cleared to the prospective Russian market and to the millennium through these countries. This will not necessarily mean that they will be smashed or annexed one by one. As a matter of fact, it is quite well possible that Hitler will arrive at the Russian border without striking a blow.

East European Countries

Easy Prey to Germany.

The natural reaction of all those East European countries would be to stand together and form a united anti-German bloc and link this bloc with France on the other side. But for this they cannot make up their minds. The German propaganda service has first put the wind up by waving the Bolshevik danger before their eyes. The fear of Communism has paralyzed them completely. They refuse to be a bulwark for Russia, hence they become an easy prey to Germany.

What happened over the week end in Czechoslovakia shows that Germany will not fight, will not provoke a war with Prague which might drag in the great powers France and England against her. For actually marching into Czechoslovakia—that is keeping the peace ostensibly—Germany is to be rewarded by the economic conquest of Czechoslovakia. England and France are now urging Prague to give in to the utmost, give the Sudeten Germans and to produce a single piece when laid on the ground and covered with dew it could not be seen at all.

And so they will go one by one, slowly, methodically, Hitler is clearing himself a pathway to the wheat fields of Rumania, to the great market of western Russia from the Baltic to the Black Sea. Until the day when he finally reaches the Russian border. Then he must fight and then only. He expects to down the Soviets in less than a year. If he does, he will indeed be sitting on top of the world. So mighty an empire as Germany-Russia will merely have to ask for colonies of France and England, and get them handed over on a silver platter.

Holland Humor.

Hollanders, believe it or not, do love their little joke. We have all heard of the Irishman who, when asked to buy a stove and when told by the storekeeper that it would save half his fuel, immediately replied that he would buy two stoves and save all his fuel. At Kampen in Holland, the town fathers, desiring to protect the municipal sundial, ordered it to be enclosed so that the rays of light might not injure it. This same town council, deliberating on the failure of fire engines to work properly during a fire, resolved that "on the evening preceding a fire" all engines must be overhauled.

Five Cents a Day Brings Peace to Mothers—McGill

He Tells How Parents in Crowded Apartment House in Stockholm Got Together on Problem of Youngsters.

(This is the final article in a series on the Scandinavian countries by Ralph McGill, Constitution sports editor in Europe on a Rosenwald Foundation fellowship.)

By RALPH MCGILL.

LONDON, England (By Mail)—London's terrible slums remind me that Sweden, from which I recently returned, has no slums at all.

England's housing program, admirable as it is, is being modified to include some of the lessons Sweden learned. But only Sweden is approaching the problem of large families with small incomes and housing to care for them.

I recall visiting Gertrude Olsen at Korsbars Karmen apartments in Stockholm. Two companies, private companies, built them. They had loans from the government and the land for the building was given free—the government retaining the title but permitting the profits—regulated—to go to the private company.

The apartments were for families with a low income. They are several years old. The families had three, four and five children. The apartments were too small for such families. The children did not have ample opportunity for play or recreation. The mothers, busy with the household duties, could not give proper supervision.

Something had to be done. They planned special rooms in the apartment building. They got Gertrude Olsen.

There were 100 families in the apartment house.

GERTRUDE OLSEN DOES HER JOB

Gertrude Olsen organized her department. It had kitchen, dining hall, play rooms and study rooms. There were separate rooms and play halls for the children of 1 to 3 years and 3 to 7 years. There was a sleeping room for the children of 1 to 3 years.

Every morning at 9 o'clock the children from 1 to 7 years—were back at home. They had had a lunch of balanced food. The smaller ones remained until 3 o'clock, taking a nap in a quiet room with none of the disturbances of a small apartment to worry them. Gertrude Olsen and her aides took up the job. The children were bathed and divided into groups. Some played games. Some drew pictures. Others played with toys or sat in the sun room. All were supervised.

PLAN COSTS ONLY 5 CENTS A DAY

The children came flocking home from school—not to their parents but to the now vacant children's rooms. There they received a warm meal. They then went about their homework, studying their lessons in an atmosphere of calm instead of in the family apartment. Once the homework was done they returned home.

The lessening of the mother's load was tremendous. The cost—about 5 cents, something less than 5 cents per day. The family saved at least that much on the child's meal and its preparation.

In the same rooms the children's activities were developed—clubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts. Each had an evening. The Swedes seem to be very patient. The government official who was with me stood testants at the Hamilton hotel, a rendezvous of many visitors from Georgia and the south. The banquet, which was honored by the presence of the majority leader of the senate, Alben Barkley, of Kentucky; Senator Edwin Carl Johnson, of Colorado; Representative J. Mark Wilcox, of Florida, and others prominent in the official life of Washington, was held at 6:30 p. m., so that the boy and girl spellers might get to bed early in preparation for a strenuous day tomorrow.

After she had become comfortably settled at the Mayflower, Miss Glenn issued this formal statement:

"After a calm, normal Sunday, I walked into the Terminal station, Atlanta, a little before 7:10 p. m., and was immediately plunged into one of the most exciting events of my life. It seemed that everyone was there to see us off; a crowd of girls from school, Mr. Borden and photographers who later took our pictures as we stood on the train steps and waved good-bye to everybody.

"When the train left the Terminal we were on the observation platform and decided to remain there until we passed Emory station in the hope that my father and sister would get there from the Terminal in time to wave at us again. The train stopped at Emory but no member of the family could be seen. But just as we were about to turn back, a great shout of good-bye fairly rent the air. Papa had pulled all the girls into his car and raced out to Emory, pulling up on the bridge above the tracks just in time to call as we went under.

"After most comfortable trip on the Seaboard we arrived in Washington a little after noon today. We are staying at the Mayflower. One of the largest hotels in Washington. When we registered for the contest at the Hamilton hotel a bit later, I met Jean Taylor, the contestant from Plainsfield, N. J. We are resting now before getting dressed for the banquet to be given at the Hamilton in honor of the 22 spellers from all over the country."

Betty said she would wear a new blue silk net dress, a gift from her mother and father, at the banquet.

IL DUCE REVEALS LOSSES IN SPAIN

Ethiopian Conquest Reported Less Costly.

ROME, May 30.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini disclosed today, following a nation-wide celebration of the "day of solidarity for nationalist Spain," that his support of Generalissimo Franco's Insurgent armies already has cost more Italian lives than his conquest of Ethiopia.

While Il Duce received Colonel Milan Astray, Franco's emissary to the celebration, and other Spanish Insurgent officers in a two-hour conference at Venice palace an official communique was issued revealing that 2,032 Italian Blackshirts have been killed on Spanish battlefronts since February, 1937.

D. F. ROGERS, 62, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Daniel Frederick Rogers, 62, of Ivey road, N. E., pioneer in the field of electrical engineering and member of a prominent southern family, died early yesterday morning in a private hospital after a two-year illness.

A member of the first graduating class of Clemson College, Mr. Rogers supervised construction of the substation which provided current for the first electric railroad train into New York city on July 1, 1907.

Born in South Carolina. Born near Dillon, S. C., on September 1, 1875, he was the son of the late Lot B. and Adeline Townsend Rogers. He was graduated from South Carolina High school there and after leaving Clemson he entered the apprentice course with the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, Pa.

In 1904, he was transferred to the New York district as assistant engineer and he came to Atlanta in 1908, residing here since that time.

He organized and was instrumental in building up the service department of the Westinghouse Electric Company in the southeast and in his last years had served as consulting engineer for the company here.

Services Tomorrow. Ten years after his graduation from Clemson, he was called back to receive the professional degree of electrical engineering from the Clemson College.

He married Miss Dixie Cawthon, of Mobile, Ala., in 1915. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow in Dillon, S. C., where the body will be taken by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Surviving, besides his wife, are three sisters, Miss Julia Rogers, of Latta, S. C., his twin sister, Mrs. S. A. McMillan, and Mrs. Ida Rogers Ellerbe, both of Latta, and six brothers, R. L. Rogers, of Winder, and Dr. J. B. A. M. H. M. and A. P. Rogers, all of Dillon, and L. B. Rogers, of Latta.

Neighboring Youth Held in Attack-Death.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 30.—(P)—Searchers guided by the story of a 5-year-old boy today found in a wooded section near her home the stabbed and beaten body of 6-year-old Shirley Ann Woodburn, and several hours later police detained a youth for questioning in her death.

"She went up the hill in the woods with a man," Arthur Rahn, the girl's playmate when she disappeared Sunday afternoon, told searchers.

Police took into custody for questioning an 18-year-old youth who is a neighbor of Mr. and Mrs. John Woodburn, Shirley's parents.

Major Gustav Lorenz reported the girl had been attacked.

Policemen T. J. Sikes and J. B. Bishop Jr. said the car first struck a car driven by Joe Selbold, of 425 Sterling avenue, S. W., before bouncing the 143 feet and plunging under the house. Six negroes in the machine fled.

2,023 ITALIANS DIE FOR DUCE IN SPAIN

ROME, May 30.—(P)—The Italian government today reported a total of 9,541 casualties among the Italian expeditionary force aiding Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco in the Spanish civil war since the conflict started.

Of the total, 2,023 were killed and the others wounded, captured or reported missing.

INSURGENTS TAKE MORA DE RUBIELOS

Rebels Gain Domination of Strategic Communications Center.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), May 30.—(P)—Spanish Insurgents late today entered Mora de Rubielos, next to the last line of government defenses dominating the important Teruel-Mediterranean highway.

Launching a general offensive, the Insurgents took the town after a temporary setback at the hands of a government force 16 miles southeast of Teruel, and reported sweeping gains elsewhere along the 56-mile-long east-west Teruel-Albacacer front.

Government brigades were reported falling back both to the right, left and center of the line. By taking Mora de Rubielos the Insurgents gained domination of a strategic communications center and a network of roads connecting with the main Teruel-Sagunto-Valencia highway, eight miles to the south.

The insurgent offensive came as a lightning stroke after one of their cavalry units was defeated by a small government force on the south side of the highway at La Clavela Hill, 16 miles southeast of Teruel and 55 miles northwest of Valencia.

"Our troops entered Mora de Rubielos late today," the attacking commanders reported. "Our general advance sent the enemy fleeing in disorder, abandoning a large number of bodies and quantities of ammunition."

Mora de Rubielos is 20 miles east southeast of Teruel.

and kitchen furniture has been $4,242,668 in valuations, only $809,799 worth being on the books at the present time.

Though gains are shown in both real estate and personal property valuations, the assessors declared the city has 2,685 fewer taxpayers this year than last. The number was 58,539 in 1937 and thus far is only 55,854. The 1938 figure does not include 2,774 exempt returns.

Collections for the year to May 20 were $144,359 more than for the same period of 1937. The net amount collected this year to May 20 was $3,135,543 as compared with $2,991,359 to that date of 1937.

But on the other side of the picture, the city also has an increase in defaults. In 1937 the defaulters valuations on personally was $832,613 but the amount has climbed to $1,387,181 this year—a gain in defaults of $554,568. There were only 3,689 defaulters on the books as of April 30, 1937, but there are 4,417 defaulter returns this year. Defaulter returns were not included in the total valuations given, although some revenue will be collected from them.

More personal property will be put on the books between now and the end of the year, which is usual, it was said.

Valuations Increase.

In the last six months of 1937 personal property valuations were increased $8,727,734 but the assessors said they do not think any such amount will be added this year. They reported that $1,650,000 additional is in sight and predicted that the total personal valuations for the full year in 1938 will be comparable to those of 1937.

Atlanta's saved $59,438 this year by paying their taxes promptly. This amount was allowed in discounts given for payment before taxes went into default.

Mayor Hartsfield pointed out that the foremen and personal valuations do not bear comparison to the same relation to the financial condition of the city as they did before the new budget law was adopted and put into effect. The city's budget is now made up on the basis of cash received and not entirely upon the anticipated revenue from total assessments.

Fines Decline.

"Receipts from recorder's court fines and from water are falling off," the mayor asserted. "It is estimated that if receipts from fines continue to decrease as at the present rate—the city will lose about $60,000 for the year. "We cannot estimate accurately what the loss will be from water receipts," because the decrease is in industrial usage, and this might pick up or become worse," he said.

He also mentioned the additional revenue the city received from liquor store taxes, which has not been allocated. It amounts to about $75,000. Efforts are being made to appropriate the major portion of this sum for the construction of the east North avenue underpass, which the mayor yesterday termed the city's No. 1 project. Rights-of-way for the Magnolia street bridge must also be obtained.

Hartsfield said he would insist that any additional money coming in be spent for capital investments and not for increases in permanent expense.

and kitchen furniture has been $4,242,668 in valuations, only $809,799 worth being on the books at the present time.

Though gains are shown in both real estate and personal property valuations, the assessors declared the city has 2,685 fewer taxpayers this year than last. The number was 58,539 in 1937 and thus far is only 55,854. The 1938 figure does not include 2,774 exempt returns.

Collections for the year to May 20 were $144,359 more than for the same period of 1937. The net amount collected this year to May 20 was $3,135,543 as compared with $2,991,359 to that date of 1937.

But on the other side of the picture, the city also has an increase in defaults. In 1937 the defaulters valuations on personally was $832,613 but the amount has climbed to $1,387,181 this year—a gain in defaults of $554,568. There were only 3,689 defaulters on the books as of April 30, 1937, but there are 4,417 defaulter returns this year. Defaulter returns were not included in the total valuations given, although some revenue will be collected from them.

skin, particularly around the neck, for chemical analysis.

"There was a ridge there, possibly caused by some constricting band. (And that constricting band, he said, might have meant strangulation). We are searching diligently for the head because, under instruments, it might tell us many things we would like to know in this story. Failing to find the head, some of our purposes may be defeated.

"In more than 1,000 drowning cases I have never before known the head to be missing."

He added that "from the beginning" he never had believed the boy would be recovered.

"He was pitiful," said the doctor, "and a lad of 12 can cause his abductors a lot of trouble."

Just Guess Work.

He added that while almost everything connected with the murder was as yet little more than guess work, at least one thing appeared highly probable, and that was that his captors kept demanding money long after Peter Levine was dead.

About 55 friends of the Levines were present at the funeral, during which Mrs. Levine leaned heavily upon her husband's arm. Dr. Henry Newman, leader of the Brooklyn Ethical Society, delivered the funeral address.

There were but two songs. Handel's "Largo" and Chopin's Funeral March. There was but a single cluster of flowers.

The body was cremated.

BEN HILL CAMP GUARD, J. W. MURPHY, 64, DIES

J. W. Murphy, 64, of 1545 Murphy avenue, S. W., guard at the Ben Hill convict camp, died at his home yesterday afternoon.

Surviving are his wife; four daughters, Mrs. R. B. Thompson, Mrs. H. H. Brannon, Mrs. A. T. Johnson and Miss Annie Mary Murphy; and one son, W. P. Murphy, all of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Prays Baptist church. Burial will be in the churchyard under direction of Howard L. Carmichael.

"YOU SHOULD SEE WHAT I SAW WHERE CAMELS ARE MADE"

BY Eddie Cantor

AMERICA'S LAUGH KING, Eddie Cantor, has his serious, thoughtful moments too. His uproarious "Cantor's Camel Caravan" broadcasts (every Monday night over the Columbia Network) command respect because of his sincerity in his work. And Eddie's truly sincere about his self-termed job of "Camel Radio Salesman." Says salesman Cantor, "Everything isn't too much to know about a cigarette like Camel." And so Eddie took a trip to Winston-Salem, home of Camel cigarettes. Here is what he saw—

"HELLO EVERYBODY!"

Here I am in Camel town. Am I impressed! Everybody looks so happy—so enthusiastic! You'd think each one of the 13,000 Reynolds workers owned the plant. And say, thousands of them are owners—they've got Camel stock! And they really get fun out of making Camels. Maybe that's a reason people get so much ## fun out of smoking Camels.

Wouldn't you like to work here? Nobody's been laid off by Camels in 12 years. When that old whistle blows, all the officials in this place are right on the job too. And they have only one job—making Camels so good that more people smoke them than any other cigarette. Yes—that's everybody's job at Camels. Imagine a place like ## this Camel plant. They had

social security here years ago. When you're sick, you get a nice healthy check each week. If you die, your family is protected by insurance. When you reach retirement under the Reynolds plan, the company sends you a check each month for the rest of your life. It's certainly great to be a Camel worker!

"COSTLIER TOBACCOS?"

Has Camel got costlier tobaccos? Listen—I'm looking at it, folks, in the picture above. And there's a hundred million dollars' worth of it right here at Winston-Salem. I saw thousands and thousands of hogheads of those finer tobaccos aging in the Camel warehouses—row after row of long, impressive-looking buildings about three miles off from the plant. That tobacco looks so g-o-o-d, smells so g-o-o-d. If you're smoking a Camel, you're smoking some of those finer, costlier tobaccos right now. How do they keep this tobacco 'just right,' the way you like it? They make the workroom 'weather' themselves with a wonderful air-conditioning plant. And, besides, they actually wash the air every few minutes. Do the Camel folks like to work in that place! In the last picture,

I'm watching those costlier Camel tobaccos going into finished cigarettes—millions and billions of them. 'There's a lot of pleasure coming out of those machines,' I said to my guide. 'IN FACT, YOU CAMEL PEOPLE AND I ARE REALLY IN THE SAME BUSINESS—MAKING MORE PLEASURE FOR MORE PEOPLE!'

Have a Camel! See for yourself why there's more real pleasure—more out-and-out enjoyment—in Camel's matchless blend of finer, more expensive tobaccos—Turkish and Domestic.

See why tobacco planters, men who grow and know tobacco, make Camel their cigarette. You'll say, as millions of smokers do, "Camels agree with me." Camel is America's largest-selling cigarette!

FOUR MORE CASES ARE SET FOR TRIAL IN GRAFT INQUIRY

Grand Jury Questions 30
Liquor Dealers About Obtaining Permits.

As the Fulton county grand jury questioned about 30 liquor dealers yesterday in the inquiry into methods of obtaining liquor licenses, four more cases arising from the jury probe of law enforcement graft and prison camp releases were placed on the superior court calendar.

The first court trial of law enforcement officers indicted by the jury begins tomorrow morning when Gus H. Howard Jr. and Joe F. Schilling Sr., former deputy sheriffs, go into court to answer jointly a nine-count indictment charging them with accepting bribes.

The state's cases against H. C. Simmons, former Bellwood prison camp clerk, and George C. Conley, paroled prisoner, were placed on the calendar for trial June 8. The two were indicted jointly on a 12-count felony indictment charging them with participating in a "release racket."

Trials Are Set.

Cases against G. B. Scoggins and F. J. Aycock, suspended city policemen, were set for trial Wednesday, June 15. Both were named in an indictment charging them with accepting bribes on two different occasions.

Meanwhile, the grand jury, turning aside from its law enforcement graft probe while Assistant Solicitor General E. E. Andrews was preparing to prosecute the cases against Howard and Schilling, was following up its probe into liquor licensing.

After a lengthy session yesterday in which liquor dealers carried their records before the jury, jurors scheduled another session for tomorrow. Additional subpoenas were being drawn for more liquor dealers.

Dealers Questioned.
The dealers were being asked if they had to "pay off" anyone before they were granted their licenses, it was understood. They also were being asked if they obtained their licenses through attorneys and whether they "knew" anyone in city council, according to reports.

As Solicitor General John A. Boykin conducted the liquor license inquiry, Andrews yesterday questioned several witnesses who have appeared in connection with the police graft probe.

Indication that the Howard-Schilling trial would probably last at least through the early part of next week came as deputy sheriffs set about serving more than 200 subpoenas issued by attorneys for the two ex-deputies.

Howard is represented by John Hudson, former assistant solicitor, and John L. Kelley. Schilling is represented by James A. Branch. The cases are expected to be tried by Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain superior court circuit.

Georgia Epsilon Fraternity Charter Is Returned

Left to right are James Humber, president of the Emory chapter, Alpha Sigma Epsilon; Dean W. B. Stubbs, of Emory University, an alumnus; Mrs. Leonard Brown, Mrs. Frances B. Chase and Judge E. E. Pomeroy, at the S. A. E. house, at Emory, as Judge Pomeroy presented the charter with its original charter, which had been "lost or missing" for 50 years. Humber and Stubbs accepted the document and expressed thanks.

GEORGIA EDITORS WILL HEAR RIVERS

Shore Dinner, Visit to Tatt-
nall Included on Press Program.

SWAINSBORO, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—Governor Rivers will head the list of speakers at the annual convention of the Georgia Press Association to be held here June 8-11. He will speak at the opening session and will be introduced by Senate President John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro.

Friday afternoon, June 10, the editors will visit the new Tatt-nall prison near Reidsville, inspecting the entire plant.

Returning to Swainsboro, the visitors will be guests of the First District Press Association. Miss Frankie Trappell, district president and editor of the Metter Advertiser, will be in charge.

A trip to Savannah and Savannah Beach is on Saturday's program. Among events will be a shore dinner at Savannah Beach, with the Savannah Morning News and Evening Press and the Savannah Beach Chamber of Commerce as hosts.

Other entertainment at Swainsboro includes a barbecue, visit to the pine timber farm of James Fowler near Soperton, a street dance and a skeet shoot.

BAKER HOLDS LEAD OVER ITU'S HOWARD

Votes From 515 of 900
Locals Tabulated.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30. (UP)—Claude M. Baker, of San Francisco, Cal., tonight was leading Charles P. Howard, of Chicago, president of the International Typographical Union, in unofficial election returns for union presidency, 33,474 votes to 19,261.

Votes have been tabulated from 515 of the 900 local unions of the I. T. U. About 750 are expected to file returns.

For first vice president, Francis G. Barrett, New York city, was running a close race with Alfred J. Whittle, New Rochelle, N. Y. Whittle held a slight lead, 25,821 to 25,269.

Woodruff Randolph led Harry B. Schaudt for secretary-treasurer, 26,330 to 25,459.

'PETE' MANER JR. DIES; EX-BOYS' HIGH GRIDSTER

Reuben E. (Pete) Maner Jr., 21, former student at Boys' High school, where he played on the football team, died unexpectedly yesterday afternoon following a week's illness. He was once a member of the R. O. T. C. unit at Boys' High. He graduated from Maddox Junior High school. He lived with his parents at 669 Jones avenue, N. E.

Surviving are his parents. Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Sons.

REDS VOTE TO FIGHT RAILROAD WAGE CUT

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—The Communist party decided today to wage a campaign against the proposed national cut in railroad wages and then moved into a closed night session for discussion of plans to be included in the party platform.

The planks, presumably, will be brought up for vote tomorrow.

Epsilon Charter Is Found After 50-Year Search

A 50-year search for the original charter of Georgia Epsilon, the Emory University chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, ended yesterday when Judge E. E. Pomeroy presented the document to James Humber, president of the chapter, and Dean W. B. Stubbs, representative of the alumni.

Fifty members of the fraternity were present at ceremonies at the S. A. E. house.

Judge Pomeroy, speaking on behalf of Mrs. Frances Brown Chase and Leonard Chase, sister and brother of the late Walter R. Brown, founder of Georgia Epsilon and a pioneer Atlanta, also presented to the chapter a portrait of its founder.

He pointed out the work of Mr. Brown in organizing the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. and spoke of his close friendship with the late Henry Grady.

The charter was issued to Brown in 1881 and for the past 50 years has hung on the walls of his law offices and, after his death, in the home of his sister.

E. A. CARSON DIES WORKING ON LINE

Cause of Death Unknown;
Believed Electrocution or Heart Attack.

Enoch Allen Carson, 46, lineman for the Georgia Power Company for more than 14 years, died yesterday afternoon while working on a "hot" wire atop a pole on the new Rockbridge road, one mile north of Stone Mountain.

He and a fellow worker, A. J. Fowler, were changing the wires when Carson slumped in his safety belt, the upper part of his body swinging downward. Fowler took the body to the ground, where a crew of 11 men worked in shifts to resuscitate him.

Fowler told company officials he was working on the same wire as Carson, but that he was not shocked. Doctors who examined the body declared Carson did not suffer external burns and it was not determined whether he died of electrocution or of an attack.

Born in Cobb county, he moved to Atlanta early in life and has resided here since. He was on the executive board of the Electrical Workers' Union, Local No. 84, of which he has been a member for 25 years. He belonged to the John R. Wilkerson Lodge, F. & A. M. and lived on Gary road, Center Hill.

Surviving are his wife, five sons, Brady, Horrie, E. Allen Jr., Ray and Freddie Carson; three daughters, Wynline, Catherine and Vesta; sister, Mrs. M. C. Gable; brother, Sam Carson, and his father, J. B. Carson, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

G. W. GILMORE DIES IN SANDERSVILLE

Heart Attack Fatal to Prominent Banker.

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., May 30. (AP)—George W. Gilmore, one of the best known men in Washington county, died of a heart attack at his home here today.

Mr. Gilmore was vice president and director of the George B. Warthen Bank of Sandersville, president of the Sandersville Production Credit Association, and director of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia, S. C. He had extensive farming interests and was associated with his brothers in the operation of Gilmore Brothers bonded warehouse. He was active in the Baptist church, in which he was a deacon.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Pink Walker, of Warthen; three brothers, John Gilmore, of Sparta, and Alex and Thomas Gilmore, of this county.

At one time Mr. Gilmore operated a motor agency in Macon. He was a Mason and a member of Al Shih Temple of the Shrine in Macon.

GIRL SCOUT SCHOOL WILL OPEN JUNE 6

Eight Training Courses To Be Offered at Camp
Juliette Low.

CLOUDLAND, Ga., May 30.—Camp Juliette Low, Girl Scout national training school here, will open for the summer season June 6, with a schedule of eight courses to be given.

Courses for young women, both professional and volunteer, interested in recreational leadership, will include techniques in administration, personnel and program. The courses were planned by the Girl Scout national personnel division under the direction of Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., chairman, and Miss Agnes Leahy, of New York city, executive secretary.

Instructors will include experienced members of the Girl Scout national staff and others qualified to give national training courses. Miss Katharine Park, of Atlanta, will be director of the camp, which serves the Juliette Low region, comprising Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina, and the Dixie region, which includes Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Louisiana.

"Many new activities have been added since the first training courses were given in 1916," says Miss Park. "Today our program includes modern educational methods and psychology, and their practical application to the activities of Girl Scout groups, in addition to the more familiar camp activities such as swimming, hiking, nature study, arts and crafts."

JUNE COURT TO OPEN.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., May 30.—The June term of Cartersville city court will open Monday, June 6, with Judge Colquitt Finley presiding. Solicitor Fred Neel will represent the state.

Christian Citizenship Is Chief Hope Of U. S., LaGrange Seniors Told

President of College Lauded for 'Wonderful, Unselfish Service.'

LAGRANGE, Ga., May 30.—"If our government is saved, it must be saved through education in Christian citizenship," W. D. Thompson, Atlanta attorney, told 17 LaGrange College seniors at commencement exercises today as he urged them to take up the duties and responsibilities of citizenship.

Samuel C. Dobbs, chairman of the college board of trustees, another speaker, characterized this as the "saddest commencement" he has ever attended, because of the impending retirement of W. E. Thompson, president, after 18 years' service. Mr. Dobbs paid special tribute to "President Thompson's wonderful, unselfish service."

Dr. Edward Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church in Atlanta, delivered the commencement sermon yesterday.

DR. McVEY SPEAKS AT WESLEYAN.

MACON, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—Dr. Frank L. McVey, president of the University of Kentucky, addressing Wesleyan College seniors today, said one of the great problems of government is "how to make democracy work as compared with a state under a dictator."

"The slackness of democratic government is due in part to failure to see the need of careful business procedure and more particularly to the decline in our interest in governmental procedure," he said in a commencement day address.

"A great revival of spirit in our own hearts and minds with an attendant interest in government would do marvels for the nation," Dr. McVey said the politicians "prefer to do the right thing," but added, "democracy requires vigilance."

W. E. Thompson, retiring president of LaGrange College, was one of the chief figures yesterday in final commencement exercises at the college. He has held the presidency of the institution 18 years. William D. Thomson, Atlanta attorney, was guest speaker at the exercises, when 15 graduates received degrees.

Summing up, Dr. McVey said, however, that democracy "with all its defects" has done as well as any other form of government.

Five Wesleyan graduates won magna cum laude honors, one summa cum laude, and 14 cum laude.

Magna cum laude graduates were Misses Dorothy Fletcher, Mamie Annette Gardner, Ruth Niel Menges, Eleanor Rebecca

CZECHS TO TRAIN CITIZENS, 6 TO 60

War Fears Inspire Far-Reaching Decree.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, May 30.—(AP)—Czechoslovakia tonight decreed some form of military or defense service for her entire population between the ages of six and 60.

The war-born republic, which fears dismemberment at the hands of Germany and other encircling neighbors, published three military training decrees with a series of new regulations based on the stringent defense training law enacted last year.

The move came shortly after the Praha government made a conciliatory gesture toward Germany by limiting activities of Czechoslovak pilots in border regions.

Gardine and Alberta Eugenia Tru-

AMERICA PAUSES TO OFFER HOMAGE TO ITS WAR DEAD

At Historic Gettysburg, Vandenberg Warns of New Crisis.

By The Associated Press.

Across the nation—on the hallowed battlefields of Gettysburg and Antietam, in tree-shaded country towns and great metropolitan centers—tens of thousands of Americans yesterday observed the 70th annual Memorial Day in homage to men who died on the field of battle.

Graves of the war dead bloomed afresh, flags flew at half-staff and "taps" signaled a requiem to dead heroes.

In New York, only 12 War Between the States veterans—the oldest 96, the youngest 90, with a combined age total of 1,107 years—marched with faltering step on Riverside drive. Two others, too enfeebled by age to join their comrades, watched from the reviewing stand. Last year there were 15.

100,000 Witness Parade.

More than 100,000 spectators braved chills winds sweeping down the Hudson river to witness the parade.

In Times Square, ceremonies were held at the statue of the late Rev. Francis P. Duffy, famed "fighting priest," chaplain of the 69th regiment during the World War.

Mrs. Julia Cantacuzene, of Washington, D. C., granddaughter of General U. S. Grant, participated in the parade services.

President Roosevelt passed a quiet day at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home prior to his departure for the capital.

In Ohio, the state acted to make certain that there will be no forgotten veterans' graves. Carl Watson, Ohio administrator, said 600 WPA workers would devote the next six months plotting the locations of an estimated 300,000 veterans' graves, financed by $461,000 in federal funds and $22,960 in state funds.

Watson said WPA workers would index and map the sites of graves of all veterans of all American conflicts.

"Another Gettysburg."

At Historic Gettysburg, Pa., standing beside the marble monument where Lincoln pledged that "government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth," Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, said the United States has come to "another Gettysburg."

He said the crisis this time was civil, not military, and warned that "those who try to trade liberty for security" might lose both. Sons and daughters of the third and fourth generations since Robert E. Lee and his gray-clad hosts pressed north led the procession to the spot where Lincoln delivered his address.

In Washington, Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, delivered the main address at the grave of the Unknown Soldier.

In St. Louis, Governor Lloyd C. Stark, of Missouri, dedicated a new $900,000 soldiers' memorial. Homer A. Holt, secretary of the state, a statue of the Confederate General R. S. Garnett, reputedly the first officer killed in the War Between the States. It is situated at Corrick's Ford battlefield.

Americans in England, France and Belgium gathered to observe the anniversary amid an atmosphere of tension. Ambassador William C. Bullitt declared in ceremonies at the United States World War cemetery at Suresnes, France, that "war in Europe would be the ultimate defeat of all hopes for which they—the American war dead—went out to die."

WILL SEEK CAUSE OF EARLY DEATH

Health Conference To Open on July 18.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(UP)—A national health conference, called at the direction of President Roosevelt, will open here on July 18 to discuss means of coping with the cost of illness and premature death of Americans estimated at $10,000,000,000 annually.

Miss Josephine Roche, chairman of the President's interdepartmental committee to co-ordinate health and welfare activities, said invitations to participate in the conference have been sent to 100 men and other professions and organizations interested in the provision of medical services, labor, agriculture and other groups of citizens.

WPA ADMINISTRATOR IS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

GLEN COVE, L. I., May 30.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, was taken to the North County Community hospital here yesterday suffering an acute throat infection, but physicians tonight said he would be released probably in a few days.

Dr. Victor McCuaig issued a statement saying that Hopkins' temperature tonight was 101, but that "his condition is satisfactory."

Thousands Jam City Auditorium For Grand State Military Ball

Flags Wave and Bands Play as Legionnaires From All Parts of Georgia Join in Having Fun at Elaborate Party.

Thousands jammed Atlanta's remodeled auditorium last night for Georgia's first Grand State Military Ball under the auspices of Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion.

Flags waved and bands played as gaily bedecked Legionnaires from all over the state, high army officials and representatives of all veterans' organizations joined in having a good time at one of the city's most elaborate parties.

All proceeds will be used to supplement building funds for the Atlanta post's new clubhouse in Piedmont park. Officials said last night it would be impossible to get a final check on the amount raised until all reports are turned in today.

Ceremonies opened with a joint concert by the Atlanta Girls' Military band under the direction of H. A. Taylor, and the 122d Infantry band under the direction of Calvin C. Barber.

A dozen color guard companies then marched to the stage and Major Ralph P. Black, grand marshal of the ball, made a short speech of appreciation to all who had a part in making the event a success. Distinguished guests were introduced by Marion L. Boswell, commander of Atlanta Post No. 1.

NLRB ORDER RECALL RULING IS EXPECTED

Supreme Court Will Hold Its Final Session of 8-Month Term Today.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(UP)—The supreme court is expected to decide tomorrow whether the National Labor Relations Board can recall its order after litigation to test them has been filed with a federal circuit court.

In its final session of an eight-month term, the tribunal also is expected to announce whether it will reconsider an April 25 decision condemning procedure followed by Secretary Wallace when he reduced fees charged by commission men at the Kansas City stockyards.

The two cases are interrelated. The labor board litigation, involving specifically the Republic Steel Corporation, grew out of the Kansas City stockyards opinion.

The commission men had not been given a fair hearing by Secretary Wallace, the labor board decided to withdraw from circuit court litigation affecting its orders against Republic Steel. The labor board wished to adopt new procedure in order to avoid possible supreme court criticism such as in stockyards case.

The third circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia declined to permit withdrawal of the Republic Steel case. The board then asked the supreme court for a writ of mandamus.

TWO NOMINATED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Slated Clerk Will Be Elected Today.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—(UP)—The Rev. Paul C. Johnston, of Rochester, N. Y., and the Rev. William B. Pugh, of Chester, were nominated today for slated clerk of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Election of the church's executive officer for a five-year term will be held tomorrow. The present stated clerk, the Rev. Lewis S. Mudge, of Philadelphia, will retire in August when he reaches the age of 70. He held the office 17 years.

Dr. Johnston, 47, was nominated by a special committee appointed by the church's general assembly. Dr. Pugh, 48, nephew of the late Rev. William Henry Roberts, stated clerk for many years, was nominated from the floor by the Rev. Charles Anderson, president of Tusculum (Tenn.) College.

Miss Molina Michael, of Athens, nationally known as "The Poppy Lady," was among the guests. She is being escorted to her place on the platform by Gerald Johnson, aide to Major Ralph P. Black.

Japan Wants Foothold in Americas And Won't Let Failure Deter Her

Latest Move After Series of Rebukes and Setbacks Is Prospective Formation of Fisheries in Peru; War-Time Importance Stressed.

By CARLOS J. VIDELA.

Latin America Editor North American Newspaper Alliance.

(Copyright, 1938, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, May 30.—Undismayed by rebukes and setbacks, the ubiquitous Japanese keep trying to get a firm foothold somewhere on the Pacific coast of the Americas. The latest development seems to be the prospective formation of a Japanese-Peruvian company, possibly headed by the big Kyodo interests of Tokyo, for the establishment of fisheries and salt works in the South American nation.

This follows efforts by the Japanese to establish themselves in Alaskan waters, to get mining concessions in western Mexico, to purchase a railroad line in Costa Rica, to operate fisheries in Panamanian seas and to work themselves into a strategic position in the Galapagos Islands, off the coast of Ecuador. They are already edging toward the antarctic whaling zone, in parts the New Zealanders consider their own.

Japanese efforts to spread their activities into foreign waters have resulted in several disputes with other nations. On the Asiatic side of the Pacific, they have been in trouble with Soviet Russia over the Kamchatka fisheries. In Alaska, their salmon fishing got them into difficulties with the United States, as did some of their activities connected with tuna fishing off California.

Their attempts to buy or control a railroad from San Jose, Costa Rica, to the Pacific port of Puntarenas, met with a rebuke from the Costa Rican government. Panama forbade them to fish in its territorial waters after February, 1938, alleging that the Japanese were using dynamite, uselessly killing great numbers of fish. Ecuador did not see eye to eye with the orientals in the matter of their fishing off the Galapagos.

Japanese troubles with American interests date from about 1930, when Japanese ships started fishing for crabs in the Bristol bay area of Alaska. Then the Japanese changed to catching salmon. In 1936, after repeated protests, the Tokyo government announced it would conduct a survey of the situation. Finally, on March 25, 1938, Tokyo accepted the American ban on salmon fishing in Alaska.

The Nipponese did not leave without giving rise to rumors more than fish was involved. For one thing, observers reported many of the officers commanding the "fishing" ships were either active or reserve officers in the imperial Japanese navy. Then, after the presence was reported near the California coast of an "alien" fleet of submarines, probably Japanese, it was remarked that the engines of the fishing vessels bore a striking similarity to the Diesel motors used on Japanese undersea boats.

ROME, Ga., May 30.—L. H. Richards, of Chatsworth, today was elected president of the Seventh District Rural Letter Carriers' Association to succeed H. E. Mize, of Cave Spring, W. I. Pope, of Tallapoosa, was named vice president, and W. A. Keown was re-elected secretary-treasurer for the 11th consecutive term.

Between 250 and 300 carriers attended the convention, and unanimously selected Rome for their convention city again next year.

Guest speakers included W. E. Wimberly, of Rome, Judge Claude H. Porter, and John R. Hornady, editor of the Rome News-Tribune. The association auxiliary elected Mrs. Fred Jolly, of Taylorsville, president; Mrs. L. H. Richards, of Chatsworth, vice president, and Mrs. James Hawkins, of Summerville, secretary.

Gilbert was attempting to scale the 9,740-foot peak with the Yakima Mountaineers Climbing Club when he fell.

N. B. SOLOMON SR. DIES OF GUNSHOT

Blakely Sheriff Says Wound Was Self-Inflicted; Peanut Crop Pioneer.

BLAKELY, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—N. Barnett Solomon Sr., 52, a pioneer in the development of the peanut as a money crop, died today from a bullet wound which Sheriff Sid W. Howell said was self-inflicted.

Howell said Solomon shot himself in the head in the bedroom of his home here and died about 2 a. m. The cause "is a puzzle to all of us," he said. He reported there would be no inquest.

Solomon was president of the Blakely Peanut Company and the Troy Peanut Company, of Troy, Ala., one of the first to recognize the value of the peanut as a crop in the south. He also established shelling plants at Coleman and Edison, Ga.

He was a native of Lumpkin, but was reared at Montgomery, Ala. He was a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church of Blakely. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in Blakely cemetery. Burial will be in Blakely cemetery.

Surviving are his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Thomas Debnam of Charleston, S. C.; two sons, James Solomon, a student at Sewanee College, Sewanee, Tenn., and N. B. Solomon Jr., of Blakely; his mother, Mrs. Mary Barnett Solomon, of Blakely; four sisters, Mrs. Shapard Dowdell, of New York city; Mrs. E. W. Bixby, of Signal Mountain, Tenn., and Mrs. Frances Jones Jr., and Mrs. Phillip Branson, both of Atlanta; a brother, Patterson Solomon, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, and a grandson, Thomas Debnam Jr., of Charleston.

MINER'S TESTIMONY REFUSED BY COURT

U. S. Balked in Attempt To Show Tampering With Witnesses.

LONDON, Ky., May 30.—(AP)—Hints of two recent attempts to tamper with government witnesses were choked off today by Federal Judge H. C. Church Ford when he sustained defense objections.

The witnesses were Ernest Huff, a small, collarless miner in a worn suit who told of a meeting with former Harlan Deputy Sheriff Lee Hubbard at Ages, Ky., yesterday, and Charles Scott, heavy-set negro miner. Scott was about about seeing Allen Bowling, another of the 22 law officer-defendants.

Huff said he was called into Hubbard's saloon. There, he related, Hubbard told him he had "some particular business to talk over with you." He said he went home and later Hubbard and two other men came to his home in an automobile and asked him to join them.

It was at this point the defense objected. After an attorney's conference, Judge Ford announced the objection would be sustained "at this time."

PUBLISHERS MAP ADVERTISING DRIVE TO COST $60,000

Would Create Bureau To Promote Southern Papers
as Medium.

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., May 30. — (P) — The Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association in executive session here today endorsed a dual plan to create an S. N. P. A. advertising bureau and a similar bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Plans were made to raise at least $60,000 a year for operation of the southern bureau for a period of three years, a substantial portion of which already has been subscribed by the publishers.

The action was taken after discussion of the report of the southern association's advertising committee, submitted by George C. Biggers, of the Atlanta (Ga.) Journal, chairman of the committee.

Purposes Outlined.
The bureau would be placed in charge of a salesman with an assistant and office staff with the object of promoting southern newspapers as an advertising medium and advertising the south as a market to other sections in advertising campaigns.

The national bureau was being planned on a broader, nationwide plane by the A. N. P. A.

Among the purposes of the bureau were the following enumerated in the report of the advertising committee:

To check the drift of local and national advertisers away from newspapers into other media.

To create new newspaper and advertising accounts.

Would Touch Every Business.

To sell newspapers as an advertising medium or as a method of advertising to every legitimate business with an advertising appropriation.

To furnish local and national advertising staffs with information and data on competitive media such as radio, billboards and magazines.

To sell southern newspapers as a supplement to cover the "weakness" of magazine, radio and billboard coverage in the south.

The convention will elect new officers tomorrow, the second day of the annual convention. Ted Dealey, publisher of the Dallas (Texas) News-Journal, is the retiring president.

Their Arguments Are O. K.—If They're Not Domestic

Left to right, Horace McConnell, Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. Paul White and her husband. The two women seem to be "shaking on it," but their husbands seem to be giving the grip of the lawyers' lodge as the four met last night prior to the quiet's receiving their master degrees in law Thursday night. According to Blackstone everything should be O. K., provided arguments between man and wife are confined to legal points.

O. L. SUTTON DIES; MILLER 40 YEARS Services Will Be Conducted This Afternoon.

O. L. Sutton, 66, head miller at the Atlanta Milling Company for 40 years before his retirement three years ago, died at his farm near Lawrenceville, Ga., early yesterday after a lengthy illness.

A native of Sweetwater, Tenn., he came to Atlanta 43 years ago. He was a member and former Sunday school official in the St. Paul Methodist church.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the St. Paul Methodist church. The body will be taken by H. M. Patterson & Son to Sweetwater for burial. Surviving are his wife, a son, J. H. Sutton, of Atlanta, and a sister, Miss Mary Sutton, of Sweetwater.

Two Husbands and Their Wives To Receive Law Degrees Together

Two Heads Are Better Than One—Especially in the Legal Profession, So Why Not Travel Along Side by Side, They Insist.

By LUKE GREENE.

Two Atlanta wives who find the study of law more fascinating than juggling pots and pans will receive degrees from the Woodrow Wilson College of Law along with their husbands at graduation exercises Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. White, of 453 Hill street, S. E., will get their masters degree in law, while Mr. and Mrs. Horace McConnell, of 1362 Wayne avenue, will be awarded their bachelor of law degrees.

Two heads are always better than one—especially in the legal profession—so why not travel along together, the couples insist.

Mr. and Mrs. White had an additional reason for pursuing their legal training together—it was law that led to their romance. They met five years ago when both were attending the Atlanta Law School.

Then cupid entered the picture, subpoenaed both to appear at the altar, and as result they became Mr. and Mrs. The husband was graduated with a bachelor of law degree in 1933 and the wife in 1936.

Mrs. White, who has two children, one three years old and the other 15 months, said she planned to wait until they were older before she took up her practice seriously, although she has already handled several cases. Her husband has a position with the State Highway Department.

"When I was in high school I was on the debating team and it was then that I became interested in law," she said. "Since that time the courtroom has always held a great fascination for me, and I always take advantage of every opportunity to go to court."

She said she was especially interested in criminal law and added that she and her husband hoped to "open up an office of our own some day."

Mrs. White admitted a knowledge of law by both husband and wife causes occasional arguments on legal points "which soon blow over."

"You can't change a woman's opinion as quickly as you can a man's, and if there's something I really believe I'll argue the point to the very last," she declared.

Mrs. McConnell, who has a position in the legal department of the Veterans' Administration at Hospital No. 48, felt that she needed a knowledge of law to aid her in her work.

Her husband, who is employed in the circulation department of The Constitution, says he never argues with his wife over law.

"On the contrary," he said, "I find that studying together is extremely beneficial. Things frequently come up which can be ironed out quicker by a discussion between two people."

He said he entered the Woodrow Wilson College of Law after finishing at Central Night school. "I wanted to take up something else," he said, "and I decided law was just the thing. I do not plan to practice, however."

WINDSORS TO VISIT U. S., LONDON HEARS

sort of home atmosphere is to pay a visit to the United States.

If this journey is to be undertaken, it is believed that it will take place next year, possibly in April or May. The Windsors are taking immense interest in the new house they have rented on the French Riviera, and, although the residence was supposed to be let fully furnished, quantities of the Duke's furniture, which previously had been at Fort Belvedere, have been removed from Frogmore, where it was stored, and taken to Cap d'Antibes. It is expected that the Windsors will spend the greater part of the winter in the south of France, with a possible winter sports excursion, although it will be difficult, in the present state of European political tension, for them to go to the Austrian, now German, Tyrol, as they have done in previous years.

Poppies Will Go on Sale Thursday For Benefit of Disabled Veterans

Entire Proceeds Will Be Used Here, Commander Self of V. F. W. Declares; Plight of Wounded Men Now Unemployed Cited:

"Buddy" poppies will go on sale Thursday. This will be the seventeenth annual sale of poppies made by disabled American war veterans. All money received will be used entirely for the benefit of disabled veterans, their dependents and for the families of the soldiers who died in the wars.

Paul Self, commander of the Greater Atlanta Post, No. 390, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, announced that his organization is sponsoring the sale in memory of "America's heroic dead, who sacrificed their lives in defense of our national principles and ideals."

The funds raised here will be spent in Atlanta, he said.

Mrs. Paul Self and Mrs. Charles Vocals are cochairmen of the sales committee which will be in charge of the one-day campaign. Other organizations are co-operating with the post in offering the "Buddy" poppies to the public.

Unemployment is now especially hard on the veteran of the wars who has a 30 or 40 per cent disability as the result of his service to his country, Self pointed out.

Part of the receipts of the Atlanta "Buddy" poppy sale will go to aid such veterans until they can find work, while part of it will be used for the families of dead veterans, Self said.

The sale of "Buddy" poppies here is a part of the nation-wide campaign to help care for the half-million or more disabled veterans and their dependents.

odist Episcopal Church, South, owns "approximately $400,000,000 in property," including church buildings, schools, colleges, hospitals and a publishing house "whose sales in 1937 were $1,729,481."

"Vast Confusion."
To allow the charter granted Aiken to remain in effect would "create vast confusion," it was said.

The action stated that there is a membership of 35,000 in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the Atlanta district, and that there are 48 churches in the district. Emory University is owned and operated under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Aiken's charter stated the new organization would seek to band together all the members of the Methodist church opposing unification of the three branches. His charter request said the name "Methodist Episcopal Church, South," was not incorporated and his body was the only one that could legally use the name as a corporation.

The petition yesterday asked that the charter be revoked and that the group not be allowed to incorporate under any name similar to the other two branches of the Methodist church—the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Protestant church.

FULTON, RUSSELL CADETS RATE HIGH

Two Schools Make R.O.T.C.
Honor List.

Fulton and Russell High schools have been awarded "honor" ratings by the War Department for military proficiency, it was announced yesterday by Major General George Van Horn Moseley, fourth corps area commander.

"The report of the proficiency inspection of your junior R. O. T. C. unit has been received and approved," General Moseley said in a letter to Jere A. Wells, county school superintendent, "and it is with much pleasure that I inform you that Fulton High school and Russell High school have been awarded rating 'Honor High School.'"

"Please accept my congratulations and convey to all concerned my cordial felicitations and good wishes."

Don't Be Fooled About Constipation!

Many people, when constipation hits them, just reach for the medicine shelf, dose up with a physic, and try to forget it—till the trouble comes back. And come back it usually does—more and more often—till you get at its cause.

If you eat what most people do—just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are just this fact causes your trouble: lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If that's the reason for your trouble, what you need is a good dish of crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Wives of Commencement Guests Add Charm and Beauty to Affairs

By Sally Forth.

THOUGH they did not occupy the spotlight of attention that was focused upon their distinguished husbands during the week end, the wives of the gentlemen to receive honorary degrees from Oglethorpe University added both charm and beauty to each of the festivities graced by their presence.

Outstanding among the group was lovely Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce, wife of the National Geographic Society's vice president and assistant editor of its magazine, who accompanied her husband to Atlanta. Slender, youthful and vivacious, Mrs. LaGorce possesses dark hair and flashing dark eyes which light up her sensitive face to marked degree when she speaks. Smartly costumed for each occasion, she appeared at the luncheon at which Dr. Thornwell Jacobs entertained for his commencement guests on Saturday, wearing a filmy black chiffon fashioned with a flesh-tinted blouse, and a chic black straw sailor wreathed in a thin black veil with flesh-tinted chenille dots.

Coming from across the continent was Mrs. T. K. Peters, of California, wife of the director of archives. Tall and slender of figure, Mrs. Peters is distinctly brunet, with patrician features and a soft, soothing voice. She was modestly gowned in black for Saturday's luncheon, with a cluster of fragrant gardenias offering a contrasting note. In answer to Sally Forth's query about sharing her husband's interest in archives, she shyly admitted that her hobby is not historical records but—cats.

Mrs. Charles Haden, whom Atlanta society invariably seeks as an asset to its social gatherings, gave up attending alumnae day at her beloved alma mater, Wesleyan College, on Saturday to accompany her husband and bask in his reflected glory upon the occasion that did him honor. Mrs. Haden, you know, is past president of the National Alumnae Association, so foregoing alumnae day was something of a sacrifice. "But I could not desert my husband on the red letter day of his life," she explained with pride and graciousness.

Another Atlantan who "shadowed" her husband upon the auspicious occasion was Mrs. Robert W. Burns, wife of the other local figure to receive a degree. As lovely to look upon as she is charming to talk to, Mrs. Burns easily fits into the picture as the wife of one of the city's most popular and beloved ministers, and her presence is stimulating, even in the role of an onlooker.

MRS. CARL DODD, the former Susie Hallman, is busy this week attending the graduations of her nieces, Adalene Barnett and Mamie Hallman. Adalene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nunnally Barnett, of Asheville, formerly of Atlanta, graduates this evening from St. Genevieve-of-the-Pines and tomorrow, Mamie, daughter of the John Hallmans, of this city, will receive her diploma from the Fulton High school. Mrs. Dodd will entrain immediately after Adalene's graduation in order to reach Atlanta in time to see Mamie receive her sheepskin. By the way, Adalene will deliver the valedictory at her graduation exercises.

Mamie and Adalene, as you know, are the granddaughters of Mrs. A. F. Hallman, one of Atlanta's most beloved women. The girls are devoted cousins and never fail to spend a part of their vacations together in Atlanta or Asheville.

Higher education will take Mamie next fall to Washington, D. C. to study at Arlington Hall. Adalene will enter Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans where her pronounced artistic talent may be developed in the famous art school of that institution which has extended her an honor scholarship on her record made at St. Genevieve in Asheville.

Speaking of Asheville, Sally hears that city is making elaborate preparations for the annual Rhododendron Festival scheduled for June 14-17. The festival will attract visitors from over the nation and will be brought to a brilliant climax when Elizabeth Raedeker and H. G. Nichols will be crowned to reign over the Royal Court of Rhododendron. By the way, the scepter will be presented to the newly named queen by Mrs. Fred L. Seely Jr., who reigned as queen over last year's festival.

Official representative at the Rhododendron Court in the Realm of Laurel from the Province of Georgia will be Elizabeth Mathis, of Americus, a student at the University of Georgia and one of the brightest, prettiest and most popular of that institution's co-eds.

SUMMERTIME is sailing time, and thoughts of Atlantans are now daily turning to romantic ports and foreign lands. One congenial group of young people is making plans to sail on July 2 aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam, that magnificent steamer which has just recently been completed. As this will be one of the first crossings made by the ship, this voyage will be even more festive and exciting than ocean trips usually are.

Sailing together on this date will be Laura Hill, Sasa Smith, Bryant Jones, Charles Jones and Bobby Gray, of Atlanta, and Bobby's cousin, Josephine Clapp, of Savannah, who has frequently visited her grandfather, J. R. Mobley, and has formed a wide circle of friends here.

The Nieuw Amsterdam lands in France and these travelers will go at once to Paris, from where they will begin their extensive European tour, which is to include fascinating sojourns in Switzerland, Italy, Holland, Germany, Austria, Hungary and England, with a motor trip through the Bavarian Alps as one of the high lights of interest.

The party will return home on the Statendam, which docks in New York the last of August.

ADELIE MARVIN SMITH, the lovely nine-month-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Monroe Smith, was the center of attraction on Sunday when she was christened at St. Luke's Episcopal church. The baby is the name-

Linwood Club.

Linwood Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Earl Stanford, with the following members present: Mesdames J. Clyde Withers, R. K. Babington, J. A. Bartlett, F. E. Davenport, R. H. Lowndes, N. R. Glenn, William Reed, Glover Hailey, Earl Stanford, Miss Dorothy Martin and Mrs. Everett Bishop as a visitor.

Mrs. William Reed reported a console arrangement of cherries, red and yellow roses, and wild honeysuckle in a blue pottery vase at the Garden Center during this month. Bronze bookends and a book carrying out the color scheme in the binding completed the arrangement.

Mrs. R. H. Lowndes, chairman of the program committee, discussed the program for the coming year, urging every member to grow some of the bulbs listed in the printed booklet of the club, and bring samples of the flowers to the regular club meetings.

Mrs. R. H. Lowndes discussed the club topic "Early Blooming Garden Lilies." She brought specimens of several hemerocallis and other lilies blooming at this season of the year. Luncheon was served after the meeting.

sake of her maternal great aunt, Mrs. Frederick Perkins, of Providence, R. I., and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Walter Mabey, of Camden, S. C., and the late Dr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Smith, of Atlanta.

The Rev. John Moore Walker, rector of the church, officiated at the service, and standing at godmothers were Mrs. Russell Bellman and Mrs. Richard Hull, and as godfather, Inman Brandon. Adelle wore an exquisite light blue crepe frock that was particularly becoming to her dainty beauty. An interested spectator at the christening was handsome young Lewis Monroe Jr., the proud brother of Adelle.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Monday.—We reached Washington on our return from Arthurdale, W. Va., late on Friday night. We started the following morning for Hyde Park. The President and Johnnie had gone by train, had the whole day there. They had to be there to assist my mother-in-law in entertaining her guests, while I could arrive in a more leisurely fashion. Mr. Poulitney Bigelow, who is an old friend, brought with him the Kaiser's grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand, and his wife, who are over here on their honeymoon.

Yesterday was a fairly quiet day, though the main road was crowded with holiday people the long week end.

Today, Monday, May 30, is Decoration Day and long processions are wending their way to the various churchyards to hold ceremonies decorating the graves of those men who have made the supreme sacrifice in past wars. We are reminded of those who have died for this country.

Only a little over 20 years have passed since the World War and yet, everywhere people are talking of the imminence of the next world war. Strange it is that we accept so placidly this constant recurrence of waste which plunges us into years of hardship and difficult reconstruction.

When Miss Margaret Bonfield lunched with me the other day, I could not help wondering how a woman, who has given so much of her life to constructive work for the betterment of human beings can continue to be hopeful and patient in the face of the apparent stupidity which we show in leading our lives.

I wish that we could use Decoration Day throughout this country, not only as a patriotic celebration to honor the deeds of the past, but as a day on which we remind our young people of their obligation to the future. On them lies the necessity to change the thinking of the future so that we will prevent graves all over the world, which on one day or another, are visited first by sorrowing relatives, and later by patriotic youngsters and their elders who realize that the people under the flag-bedecked gravestones gave all they had to give for their country and gained little for it and the world.

All these young lives might have served their country much more constructively had they been allowed to live out their days in peace. It is not a question of being unwilling to die for your country. It is far more the need for the typical imagination which will visualize the possibility of living so that the country will profit by the life of each one of its citizens. When they die, on their tombstones should be written: "John James lived from 1920-1980 and accomplished thus and so," instead of "Here lies John James who died at the age of 20 in the service of his country in the battle of . . ."

Memorial Day should never be given up, but as the years go by we hope that people will be honored for their lives and not for their deaths.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN

GIVING MAPLE DIGNITY.

A canopy frame for the old maple bed.

Elinor married in the era of maple, so by now she's just a little tired of the too-quiet accessories she originally chose to go with it. When it was about time to do over the backgrounds, she asked everybody's advice on just how to shift the scenes. Then went right ahead and did it her own way, which is as it should be. Because she benefited by other people's ideas, yet kept the place essentially expressive of her own personality.

Yellow With Green.

The walls of her bedroom she had painted in a clear light canary yellow with lettuce green ceiling. Then for the curtains she chose a printed organdy in soft green on a white ground. To make the bed look different, she had a canopy frame erected over it and draped it with the same green and white organdy, with white organdy at the back and for the spread. The two small easy chairs in this room have white quilted slip covers which go into the washer when they get dirty. Extra little sofa cushions have yellow pillow slips. The dressing table skirt is all in white organdy with its top papered in washable yellow wall paper and its bottles in the coolest green glass.

This setting enables Elinor to use the green and white rag rugs that she already had. And if we ever saw a crisp charming effect with maple, this is it.

Cherries Ripe.

Her dining room is just as nice—here maple goes against chaise white walls with guess what for ceilings . . . a lovely all over cherry-patterned wall paper. The insides of the two corner cupboards are painted cherry red and the sheer white curtains are tied back with bright bunches of artificial cherries. The floor here is plain green linoleum, which is awfully practical and very gay with the maple and cherries.

She hasn't gotten to the living room yet, but she says that will be done over with deep green walls—then she'll keep the dark red rug she has, have the ceilings painted beige and make plain beige slip covers for the main upholstered pieces, with a figured linen on a beige ground for the two fireside wing chairs. The curtains here will be ecru net with no draperies. How is that for giving maple dignity?

Notice how she's carrying the theme of green through each room . . . a good idea when you're planning a small house all on one floor. It gives a feeling of spaciousness and unity.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, care The Atlanta Constitution, for our Bulletin, "A Bouquet of Beautiful Beds," because it is replete with fresh ideas for bedspreads.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

CURRENT NOMINATION FOR O'HARA ROLE IS A SOUTHERNER.

"Gone With the Wind" seems to be dying down to a mild breeze as motion picture material, but our current choice for the Scarlett O'Hara role would be Marjorie Weaver—provided she is not too old by then! She is now 23.

Like the high-spirited Scarlett, this little girl from Louisville, Ky., is a startling contradiction of the notion circulating among us Yankees that the southern beauties are chiefly distinguished for their gentle languor. Marjorie Weaver's most distinctive characteristic is that intangible quality which some women never have and others never lose. The current term is "yumph," and in Hollywood it is the thing a star dreams most in the feature player.

Boiled down, "yumph" appears to consist of illusions, sometimes of true beauty, and, always, radiant health. It is no illusion that Miss Weaver is extraordinarily pretty. And how is her health? So good that she played in 16 different pictures in slightly more than a year. That record represents tremendously hard work and is proof of superb vitality.

This ability to eat up work and like it, Miss Weaver tells me, makes it hard for her to hold herself in check. As time goes on, I believe the hardest thing she will have to do is guard this marvelous vitality. In the movie business the tendency is always to overwork, and the topnotchers, so I am informed, are constantly fighting nervous breakdowns. The more successful they become, the less time they have for the habits that make for sparkling personalities and successful careers.

The little southerner has worked out a very sensible program and all she needs to do is to continue to follow it. Being from Kentucky, she is naturally a horse enthusiast and rides from four to six hours at a time, usually twice a week. On other days she swims, plays tennis or hikes.

She is smart about her diet, too, and likes milk, a good breakfast, and balanced menus. She holds her weight down to 112 pounds for her 5 feet 3 inches by the simple but Spartan practice of leaving the table a bit hungry. She just makes up her mind that she has had enough to eat. Now, who can't you do that! It looks to me as though Marjorie Weaver and Scarlett O'Hara have a lot of determination in common.

Miss Weaver herself credits smart casting for her rapid progress. Her parts have only demanded that she be herself. With a little simulated meanness, she would fit perfectly the role of the fiction heroine and that, too, would be smart casting.

Ginger Rogers Wins Bout In "Vivacious Lady"

Ginger Rogers plays the part of a glamorous night club entertainer in her latest picture, "Vivacious Lady."

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 30.—Behind the scenes with some of the new films:

"Vivacious Lady"—a full year in the making—counting the time early scenes remained on shelf awaiting recovery of James Stewart, stricken with arthritis a year ago, after only one week of shooting. . . R-K-O, decided against getting another leading man for "Vivacious Lady." When Stewart finally showed up for work, he was 15 pounds heavier. . . You'll note changed appearance in many scenes.

Ginger plays glamorous night club entertainer. . . Stewart is a bashful, bony professor from small, midwestern college. . . Boy meets girl when Stewart stumbles over champagne bucket during Ginger's song number. . . Film features one of longest love scenes ever shot in single take—6 minutes and 45 seconds—talking. . . Ginger and Frances Mercer (she's pretty, talented daughter of New York sports columnist) also fight "Battle of Century" over affections of Stewart. . . Unfortunately for contenders, this was no "one-lake" sequence. . . Girls took four slaps (and lusty ones) in face for each of 11 takes. . . Frances also kicked Ginger because she wore full-length evening dress.

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN

PASSAPHOBIA.

Passaphobia is an ailment common among bridge players affected with a rabid desire to bid every hand they pick up without any notion of the outcome. Their weakness is short-sighted opening bids.

Given the required minimum in honor-tricks and a biddable suit the card player waits for the partner to tee off with an opening bid. When partner makes an unexpected response, the believed in these minimums is almost certain to run amuck.

Fortunately for those afflicted, passaphobia, like a cold in the head, can be cured. It is caught in the early stages, can be successfully treated with simple remedies.

LOOK AHEAD.

One way to prevent colds or stiff necks is to stay out of drafts. To avoid an epidemic of passaphobia, learn to stop and look ahead before making an opening bid. A player with a bedrock minimum should realize that, when opening the bidding, he is doing so with the intention of passing partner's response for first time. He will be permitted to do, provided partner's response is a single raise or one notrump. But, when partner takes out in a new suit, the short-sighted opener will be forced to rebid, and the bidding is bound to result in reaching too high a contract.

PREFER MINOR OPENING.

Opening minimums in minor suits is preferable to opening minimums in major suits. With a minor suit opening, a player can respond to partner's major suit takeout with one notrump. With a bare minimum, opener can rarely afford to respond to a takeout of two in a minor suit with a two notrump rebid.

The best procedure is to pass with bare minimums, even though it is conceding opponent the first opportunity to bid. But passaphobians have a morbid dread of passing or they would not be passaphobians.

A dime's worth of cough syrup and a bottle of arnica or something or other will usually keep you out of a hospital. The quickest cure for passaphobia is a couple of hot penalty doubles administered when the afflicted are vulnerable.

Til tomorrow—

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

EXAMINATION JITTERS AND STAGE FRIGHT.

They are practically the same malady, though which is worse depends on which you have at the moment. Examination jitters has gradual onset, beginning several weeks before the test or examination, increasing day by day, reaching its peak at zero hour. It sticks there until you have hurriedly run over the questions and formed a rough idea how many you can hit hard enough to get a passing mark—or no mark at all, as the case may be, then the attack terminates abruptly, by crisis, like lobar pneumonia, only instead of going into a heavy sweat you just realize how silly you were to worry so much about the darned thing.

Stage fright has a sudden onset, coincident with the invitation, request or notice to address the meeting or take a role in the cantata. Temperature rises quickly to 104 and continues steadily around that level whenever you think of the approaching performance, then, like typhoid fever, declines gradually by lysis in the week or two (as it seems) after you have somehow stumbled through your first paragraph or line on facing the audience. Maybe it is only the blood pressure, not the temperature, that goes up. I have never been in any condition to determine that point in my case.

A good many victims have testified that the quinine treatment assuages or prevents stage fright, and more swear by quinine as the sovereign remedy for examination jitters.

Too often students preparing for examination resort to drugs which produce wakefulness or stimulate the cerebrum and other higher nerve centers. Every such drug we know has harmful effects or depressing after-effects, aside from the ever present risk of addiction. Quinine in moderate doses is comparatively harmless. In fact it is more or less tonic, tending to build up the strength of the red blood corpuscles.

Quinine prevents or moderates stage fright and examination jitters by its gentle stimulation of Setchenow's reflex inhibitory center in the spinal cord. I'm sorry that the name, but I know no simpler one. Translated into plain language it means that quinine steadies reflex action or tends to control "nerves" or nervousness.

Of course quinine is a cerebral stimulant, too, though not so powerful as the more dangerous drugs ill-advised students sometimes use when cramming for examinations. Where any prolonged mental and physical strain is to be undergone, a grain of quinine three times a day for a few weeks will tend to prevent exhaustion and support the system.

In using quinine to prevent or moderate stage fright or examination jitters the quinine may be taken in tablet, pill, capsule, as you prefer, the dose being one grain three times a day, just before or after meals. Either plain quinine or quinine sulphate or quinine bisulphate may be used—the last is somewhat more soluble and also more expensive. Begin taking the quinine perhaps two weeks before the ordeal and continue it up to zero hour. If it does no good at any rate it can do no harm.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Asparagus.
Is there any truth in the saying that drinking the water in which asparagus has been cooked is harmful to the kidneys? (Mrs. E. R.)

Answer—Asparagus and the water in which it is cooked are harmless to the kidneys.

Reduction.
How can one reduce weight safely when fighting pernicious anemia? (Mrs. A. R. G.)

Answer—One would be foolish to try. The attending physician should prescribe and supervise the diet in the circumstances. One ought to send any well person who needs to reduce instructions. In close with your request a stamped envelope bearing your address. If you want a copy of booklet, "New Design for Dwindling," giving full particulars about diet and general measures to build health while reducing, inclose 10-cent coin and mention booklet. Do not send a clipping or loose stamps.

KEEP FLOWERS ABLOOM ALL SUMMER; CUT FLOWERS FOR THE HOUSE

HAVE PHLOX IN WHITE AND GREEN BORDER.

What's next in your garden? Will midsummer find it without a flower to relieve the green foliage, to decorate your home? Enjoy a procession of bloom with annuals you can plant now.

Refreshing in midsummer is a white and green border featuring phlox and snapdragons, an edging of white sweet alyssum. For background, tall white cosmos of the early blooming type.

Annual varieties of these flowers grow quickly from seeds or seedlings, give you lovely bouquets. The more you cut them, keep seed pods from forming, the more flowers you have.

If you yearn for a white rose in your "Snow-White" corner, set out the shrubby rose, rugosa. It blooms all summer. Perhaps you haven't space for a new border. Plant your annuals around bulbs which have finished blooming. The roots won't go deep enough to hurt the bulbs. The new plants hide the old foliage. Of course you'll want to look farther ahead than midsummer in your planning.

In autumn enjoy brilliant clumps of claret red dahlias, purple China asters, dwarf marigolds of rich yellow. A plant now that the ground is warm.

Remember to cut the China asters when rain threatens, for a downpour ruins them. Peel the stem ends of dahlias or dip them for a second in boiling water for lasting bouquets. Set dwarf marigolds in low bowls.

Our 40-page booklet, Garden Flowers to Grow and Cut, tells how to plan for continuous garden display and home bouquets. Pointers on planting, care, color schemes.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, GARDEN FLOWERS TO GROW AND CUT, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

Now that the last of my children is married and moved away from home I am taking stock of my life and wondering how I'm coming out in the last span. My husband, always a silent man, grows more so as time goes on. He has never taken me into his confidence and while we get along without cross words we have little in common but the home and the children. When we were first married I knew he was jealous but I also knew I would never give him any reason to worry so I didn't worry about it. I couldn't foresee the future.

I naturally love people and since I get no conversation at home, I make the most of opportunity when away from home. Yet if my husband sees me pass a pleasant greeting with a man he raves and says I am crazy. Only in one of these jealous moods does he break his silence. Here's my question: Shall I, who have a zest for life, retire, stay at home and try to have peace, or go out and find my pleasure with friends? If life does begin at 40 I should have many good years ahead of me. MRS. S. T. E.

Answer:

Of course you shouldn't retire from life in order to placate an abnormal husband and buy peace at the price of dry rot. Retirement wouldn't buy peace, anyhow. Neither should you forget that a man who is silent and morose, given to fits of jealousy is being torn by internal conflicts that makes him wretched and miserable.

Yes, it's much harder to become acquainted with a stranger you've lived with for a third of a century than to become acquainted with a stranger you've never seen; but this is what you should do: become acquainted with your husband, fathom the mystery and make him feel that you are a sympathetic friend as well as wife and mother of his children.

Time was when his peculiarities didn't make a barrier between you. Time was when you loved him and depended upon him in spite of his silence and his jealousy. Then break that barrier down; for although you may not know how or when, you helped to build it up.

In a Boston museum there hangs a classic picture called the Jealous Husband. He stands at the bottom of a staircase, hidden behind a curtain, eavesdropping on his wife who is playing with their children in the nearby room. There's a revolting expression on his face, an interest in what he's hearing, fear, hate (they always go together). He's jealous of his own children!

Isn't it possible that for the most of your married life you have been occupied and preoccupied with your children and isn't it likely that your husband was jealous of them and lapsed into sullen silence as a result? You see he can make a point of other men but pride wouldn't let him admit jealousy of his own progeny.

Finally, my dear woman, no wife is happy when her husband is unhappy and vice versa. They may find diversion outside that takes their minds temporarily off their hidden heartaches but each of them must come home in the reminder that the foundation of their life is

Atlanta Federation To Introduce Important Resolutions at Meeting

Six major resolutions, recommended by the executive board of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs will be presented for consideration of that body at the session of the Federation this morning at 10 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace hotel. The meeting will be followed by luncheon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. James R. Little, Federation president, will preside, introducing distinguished guests and speakers.

Arthur A. Jones, of the National Recreation Association, Atlanta city health engineer; C. F. Palmour, president Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and H. J. Cates, Atlanta sanitary chief, will be heard on subjects of vital interest.

In resolutions to be presented by Mrs. Howard McCall, chairman of resolutions, for consideration and confirmation, the Federation, with its more than 100 affiliated clubs, will seek a broader recreational program for Atlanta, "urging the parks committee of city council to make immediate provision for the employment of a qualified director of recreation" that a permanent public recreation program may be established. Mrs. Little has been appointed the official leader in this invaluable movement toward happier and more adequate facilities for wholesome sport and recreation for leisure hours, and is in accord with the recent Reed report on the subject.

That unnecessary street noises may be curbed, the Federation will consider for approval resolutions thanking Mayor William B. Hartsfield and Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby, for their earnest efforts to reduce the horn blowing and other unnecessary street noises and of automobile traffic in Atlanta. Also in the same resolutions the mayor and chief of police are thanked for the continued effort to have home owners place street numbers of their respective homes where such numbers can be plainly visible. The resolutions are signed by Mrs. Howard McCall, chairman of resolutions; Mrs.

Charles J. Haden and Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin.

Resolutions reaffirming the endorsement of the movement to provide a public botanical garden are signed by Mrs. Hinton Blackshear, Mrs. Raymond H. Wolfe and Mrs. T. J. Ripley.

Deploping the recent disastrous fire resulting in heavy loss of life and the fact that buildings known to be "veritable fire traps" are allowed to stand and be used in Atlanta placing a constant hazard on life and adjacent properties, a fourth resolution recommended by the board indorses the plans of Mayor Hartsfield and the city council of Atlanta to "enforce a remodeling of all structures that are a menace to human life; and insist upon a closer and more comprehensive supervision of all public buildings by the operators thereof during the hours they are in use."

Through another resolution the Federation will urge the Atlanta city council and the boards of commissioners of Fulton and DeKalb counties to make such legal provisions as necessary to establish the city of Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties as bird sanctuaries and to enforce such laws as are now already existing for bird protection. This resolution, recommended by the resolutions committee and the executive committee, is signed by Mrs. W. H. S. Hamilton, chairman, parks, forestry and wild life; Mrs. Raymond H. Wolfe, press chairman, and Mrs. James Connor Oliver, president of the Atlanta Bird Club.

Mrs. Lillian Alexander Austin, chairman of health for the Federation; Mrs. Charles E. Boynton, co-chairman, and Mrs. John D. Evans, chairman department of public welfare, through a resolution, approved and recommended by the executive board "Fully endorse the movement of the eradication of the great evil—of syphilis, also gonorrhea and offer wholehearted support to the surgeon general, to the Georgia Department of Public Health and to the local department of public health and all other interested groups." The resolution further states the recommendation that the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs participate with the American Social Hygiene Association in the third annual Social Hygiene Day, February 2, 1939, and suggests that each of the ten districts set aside this day for general meeting to discuss and take any necessary action as may be beneficial.

Mrs. Bancker is president of the woman's board of Oglethorpe University and much constructive work has been accomplished under her leadership.

Luncheon Honors Miss Emily Smith.

Mrs. Samuel D. Hewlett entertained yesterday at a beautifully appointed luncheon at her home on Peachtree road honoring Miss Emily Smith, whose marriage to Harvey Hill will be an important social event of June 9.

The luncheon table was centered by a mirror plaque, upon which were placed a miniature bride and groom and wedding attendants. The plaque was surrounded by small white gondolas, manned by tiny cupids and filled with sweet peas, bridal wreath and baby's breath. The miniature bridemaids on the plaque held narrow ribbon streams, which extended to each guest's place, the ends being attached to a souvenir.

Covers were laid for: Mesdames Alex Smith Jr., Harvey Hill, Thomas Clarke, T. F. Gerding, G. Willis, A. H. Sterne, David N. McCullough, Edward D. Smith, Jr., Randolph Hearst and Miss Eleanor Spaulding, Clare Haverty, and the hostess and honor guest, Miss Smith and Mr. Hill were honored on Sunday at the buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Macon Courts at their home on Tuxedo road. ## Agnes Scott Blackfriars To Give Greek Play on Saturday Evening

Leading characters to appear in the Greek play, "Trojan Women," to be presented by the Blackfriars of Agnes Scott next Saturday evening, include, from left to right, Miss Jeanne Flynt, of Decatur, as Cassandra; Miss Elizabeth Cousins, of Decatur, as Hecuba; and Miss Helen Moses, of Sumter, S. C., as Andromache.

Blackfriars, dramatic society of Agnes Scott, will present a Greek play, Euripides' famous "Trojan Women," Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Bucher Scott gymnasium. The production will be part of the commencement program.

The cast for the play, a powerful anti-war drama, includes Miss Elizabeth Cousins, of Decatur, as Hecuba; Miss Helen Moses, of Sumter, S. C., as Andromache; Miss Jeanne Flynt, of Decatur, as Cassandra; Miss Myrl Chafin, of McDonough, as Helen of Troy, and Jimmie Jepson, Jack Barefield and Gilbert Maxwell, of Atlanta and Decatur. Miss Frances Gooch, head of the spoken English department, will direct the production, assisted by Miss Carrie Phinney Latimer, assistant in the department, who will lead the chorus of 15 voices, one of the features of the play.

After the performance of "The Trojan Women," which tells the story of the women of the nobility of Troy being taken off to Greece as slaves, the cup award which is given each year to the member of Blackfriars who has done the best individual acting of the year will be made. Miss Cousins is the retiring president of Blackfriars, and Miss Flynt is the president for next year. Miss Chafin has served this year as secretary and was May queen in the recent May Day presentation of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and Miss Moses is costume manager for Blackfriars.

Oglethorpe Woman's Board Names Mrs. J. K. Ottley as Life President

Mrs. John K. Ottley was unanimously elected honorary life president of the woman's board of Oglethorpe University at the spring meeting of the board held Saturday at the university. This honor was accorded her in recognition of her many years of service as chairman of the executive committee. It was her genius for organization that has developed the woman's board. Always refusing to take the active presidency, she has successfully been appointed to the leadership of the executive committee by every president since the beginning until recent months when she felt she must lay the work aside. Only four others, Mrs. J. T. Lupton, Mrs. Harry P. Hermance, Mrs. Samuel M. Inman and Mrs. James R. Gray Sr., hold the high position of honorary life president.

At the meeting Saturday, Mrs. Hugh Bancker was re-elected president for a two-year term. Other officers elected were: Mrs. J. D. Cromer, first vice president; Mrs. Robert P. Sweeney, second vice president; Mrs. I. R. Carlisle, recording secretary; Mrs. B. F. Ulmer, treasurer. Elected as directors for a three-year term were: Mrs. Edgar Watkins Sr. and Mrs. J. B. Francis Herreshoff.

The meeting was featured as a part of the commencement season, and Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of the university, introduced to the board the distinguished guests of the university who received honorary degrees at the commencement exercises Sunday.

The highlight on the program was the unveiling of a life-size portrait of Judge Edgar Watkins, president of the board of trustees of the university. The portrait is the work of the distinguished artist, Charles F. Nagle, and the donor prefers to remain unknown. Robert H. Jones Jr. made the presentation speech, and the portrait was accepted on behalf of the university by Dr. Jacobs. Two small granddaughters of Judge Watkins, Mary Louise and Elizabeth Watkins, unveiled the portrait.

A sewing-luncheon meeting takes place Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Weingartner, 251 Wilton drive in Decatur. The next meeting will be held in September, the time and place to be announced through the medium of the press.

pottery vases filled with garden flowers. Miniature garden hats in shades to correspond with the flowers contained varicolored mints and were retained as souvenirs by the guests.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Weingartner, who headed the table, presented Mrs. D. C. Spickard, Kentucky reporter, who gave current news of the state. A clever jingle was composed and read by Mrs. Willis L. Smith, the secretary.

The table held old blue and white

Government Is Buying Off Cedillo's Followers With Land Grants.

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 30.—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas tonight declared the rebellion of ex-General Saturnino Cedillo and his peasant followers had been stamped out by the swift concentration of federal troops in San Luis Potosi state.

"The pacification of San Luis is an accomplished fact," said the chief executive at the headquarters he set up here May 18 to direct suppression of Cedillo's insurgent movement.

Though Cedillo was still at large, Cardenas declared only small, impotent bands of rebels remained in the central Mexican hills and they "constitute no military problem for the government."

When and if Cedillo is captured, the president said Mexican laws would take care of his former minister of agriculture.

Persons close to the President asserted he would not ask the death penalty for Cedillo, former Governor and "strong man" of San Luis Potosi.

Military sources disclosed a government cavalry unit, which last week nearly captured Cedillo, was pushing into the hills above his ranch and had found some of the rebel chieftain's belongings.

A small printing plant used for composing rebel propaganda was said to have been among the material captured.

CEDILLO'S FOLLOWERS RECEIVE LAND GRANTS

MEXICO CITY, May 30.—(AP)—The Mexican government sought today through land grants to insure loyalty of General Saturnino Cedillo's erstwhile followers in San Luis Potosi state as federal troops continued pursuit of the rebel leader and his fast-dwindling force.

Dispatches from San Luis Potosi said 390,000 acres of land had been redistributed in 66 communities, benefitting 39,278 individuals and that additional grants would be made through 319 communities affecting an even greater number.

Fact That Ships Neither Drop Bombs Nor Leaflets

TOKYO, May 31.—(Tuesday.) (AP)—Western Japan was "blackened out" for three hours last night and early today as protection against two mysterious airplanes, believed to be Chinese, which cruised along the entire length of the western coast of the Island of Kyushu.

The craft apparently dropped neither bombs nor leaflets. It was Japan's second "bloodless air raid" in 10 days, Chinese planes on May 20 dropped leaflets on a 2,500-mile round-trip flight from Hankow.

Japanese authorities were mystified and worried over the raid, fearing it might presage a mass attack. They appeared more alarmed than if the planes actually had dropped bombs.

State of Alarm.

Western air defense headquarters declared a state of alarm at 10:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m. Atlantic time) and did not end it until 1:45 o'clock this morning. It was effective over Kyushu, westernmost island of Japan proper, and also over Yamaguchi prefecture, at the western end of Honshu, Japan's main island, and over the mainland.

DOIHARA HOLDS OUT AGAINST ATTACKS

SHANGHAI, May 31.—(Tuesday.)—(AP)—A Japanese army estimated at 400,000 men stretched along a 250-mile crescent-shaped front today awaited the zero hour signal for a general offensive on Hankow, one of China's temporary capitals.

The battle line, 250 miles from Hankow at its lower end, extended from Wuhu on the Yangtze river northwest through sun-blistered Anhwei province to a bitterly contested point on the Lunghai railway near Lanfeng.

Stubbornly defending China's good earth against the invaders was an estimated force of more than 1,000,000 Chinese.

The Japanese right wing, at the upper end of the crescent, was meeting bitterest resistance in the Lunghai railway corridor west of Suichow where a division under Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was trapped northwest of Lanfeng.

Heavy fighting was reported in progress in the Lanfeng sector, where the narrow bottleneck strip between the Yellow river and the Lunghai, where the fate of Kai-feng was being written in blood.

Doihara's division was holding out near the south bank of the Yellow river, between the stream and the Lunghai railway.

(A dispatch from Hankow said the Chinese command was intensifying its efforts to cut Doihara's force to pieces.)

TOLL RISES TO 1,150 IN FLAMING CANTON

Planes Believed To Be Piloted by Italians Dump Tons of Bombs on City.

CANTON, China, May 30.—(UP)—Black-winged Japanese bombers roared over the heart of this densely populated South China metropolis for the third time in three days, dumping tons of explosives on the burning city and bringing the total of the week-end raids to an estimated 1,500 dead and 5,000 wounded.

Terrified Chinese were fleeing from the burning city, crowding the waterfront across from Shameen island, where foreigners live, and into the danger of an exodus of refugees to the international zone.

British sailors stood guard on the island, while foreigners ducked into air raid shelters to escape fragments of shrapnel from anti-aircraft guns which sprayed the foreign quarters.

The destruction in the thickly populated waterfront area, only a short distance from Shameen, was appalling. Scores were trapped in burning buildings or crushed under tons of debris.

The concentrated fury of the bombings led observers to believe the Japanese were launching a direct aerial drive designed to destroy the chief port of entry for war equipment on the China coast.

H. T. DAY IS ELECTED AS ARTISTS' PRESIDENT

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 30.—The Association of Georgia Artists, at its annual meeting here, elected the following officers: President, Horace Talmadge Day, Augusta; first vice president, Miss Ellen Thomas, Augusta; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Wright, Augusta; treasurer, Mrs. Thomas Phinizy, Augusta; other vice presidents: Lamar Dodd, the University of Georgia, Athens; Mrs. Edith Paxton Oliver, Atlanta; Mrs. McGuire, Savannah; Mrs. Keen Jr., Dublin, and Edward Shorter, Columbus.

The retiring officers, Misses Flanigan, Goodwyn, Blackshear and Holiday, all of Athens, were given a vote of appreciation for their work during the past year. The exhibition itinerary was increased from seven to fifteen cities. The annual meeting hereafter will be held where the annual exhibition opens.

Hughes Writes World Recession Can't All Be Laid at Door of U. S.

Bank for International Settlement Takes View Stump Originated in America, But Market Analyst Cites Other Factors.

By GEORGE T. HUGHES. (Copyright, 1933, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, May 30.—It is generally assumed that the depression now in evidence to a greater or less extent throughout the world originated in the United States.

That is the view taken in the recently published annual report of the Bank for International Settlements. The analysis has been widely quoted and accepted as correct.

However that may be, there have been contributing causes for the recession abroad and for which this country cannot be blamed. It is undoubtedly true that economic disturbance anywhere in these days has repercussions everywhere. The totalitarian states tend to be unaffected, but it is only pretense.

It may be granted that the break-down on this side adversely affected conditions in Europe, but it is also undeniable that the situation over there played a part in deepening the depression here.

A comparison of the price movement of the London Stock Exchange with that in New York is interesting in this connection. British industrial stocks made their low this year on March 16, while, in New York, the similar low was not recorded until March 31.

Of course, the immediate occasion for the break in London was the Hitler incursion into Austria, with its threat to the maintenance of peace. That certainly had nothing to do with the vagaries of the New Deal in the United States.

Then there was the unexpected increase in the basic income tax rate in Britain to upset the markets, which again was not connected with anything developing in this country.

The subject is important because so many speculators here are impressed by the persistent fall of stocks in London and seem to think that it foreshadows events in New York. If that is so, the outlook is unfavorable.

PEACH MOVEMENT CONTINUES STRONG

100 Cars Await Loadings in State Orchards.

MACON, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—One hundred refrigerator cars were in the orchards of Georgia for loading with peaches today. This is the heaviest placement of cars this season. Sixty-five of these cars were in middle Georgia orchards.

Thirty-three cars were shipped out of the state Saturday night, and Sunday to eastern points, while 15 cars went west. Markets in the east and north were closed today, but the peach markets will open tomorrow night.

There will be no serious congestion of fruit in the markets tonight was indicated by the reports of car passings. Thirteen peach cars passed the Potomac yards Saturday, bound for New York, 17 passing those yards Sunday for the same point. Thirty cars will be available for loading in New York at midnight tonight.

The sun continues to improve the color of the fruit. Best prices are being paid for highly colored peaches.

The federal-state marketing news service will open an office here Wednesday, R. E. Keller will be in charge.

MRS. JOSEPH DENT
DIES IN MARYLAND

Widow of Former Georgia Businessman Leaves Relatives Here.

Mrs. Joseph H. Dent, widow of a former Georgia businessman, died unexpectedly Sunday afternoon at her home in Oakley, St. Mary's county, Maryland, friends and relatives here learned yesterday.

For many years, Mr. Dent was identified with business interests in Atlanta, Newnan, Carrollton and Bowdon, before going to Maryland about 25 years ago.

Surviving are three daughters, Miss Fannie Jo and Lettie Dent, and Mrs. Elliott H. Burch, and one son, John Francis Dent, all of Maryland, and the following nieces and nephews in Atlanta: Mrs. John Z. Lawshe, Mrs. George P. Fuller, Mrs. Clifford Turner, Mrs. Ida McGill, J. Frank and Robert L. Meador, H. P. Dent, Jesse and Francis Wooten and Joseph and J. Manning Goldsmith.

Funeral services will be held in Oakley today.

SHOWERS, WARMER
FORECAST FOR CITY

More scattered showers are in prospect for the Atlanta area today, the United States Weather Bureau predicted last night.

Temperatures are expected to be somewhat higher with a range from a minimum of 62 to a maximum of 84 degrees. The low reading yesterday was 64 and the Cincinnati field station reported an unofficial high of 76.

GEORGIA FUGITIVE
FLEES KILBY CELL

Atlanta Police on Lookout for Frequent But Elusive Prisoner.

Atlanta, Fulton county and Georgia state police last night were on the lookout for Wayman W. Mason, 29, who with two other convicts saved his way out of Kilby prison, near Montgomery, Ala., yesterday.

Alabama authorities believed Mason was headed toward his old "stamping grounds" of crime in Georgia following his Kilby escape, one in a series of daring breaks from prison in recent years.

Mason's criminal record in Georgia and Fulton county is a lengthy one. His prison escapes are just as well known. Arrested in January, 1936, Mason received sentences in Fulton superior court of 12 to 20 years on burglary convictions. About the same time he was tried in DeKalb superior court and received burglary sentences, to run concurrently with the Fulton county sentences.

But Mason didn't remain long in the chain gang. He escaped and resumed his criminal activities. He was re-arrested April 13, 1936, on seven charges of robbery, but fled the chain gang again. He next turned up in Birmingham and was sentenced to 30 years on robbery charges.

Ben Brown, prison identification officer at Kilby, said the trio escaped by sawing the bars from their cell windows and scaling the high prison walls with an improvised ladder.

Escape was not discovered until dawn.

Brown said the ladder was fashioned from mop handles and cotton warp. The other two who escaped with Mason were Zemo Conway, 36-year-old robber, who figured in a sensational escape attempt in 1934; convicted of robbery in Montgomery and Fulton counties and serving life, and Jack Brown, 27, serving 20 years for robbery in Jefferson county.

Fatal stabbing of another convict, Elmore Andrews, was being investigated by Kilby authorities.

Andrews was killed by a fellow prisoner, Leo Self, a coroner's jury reported. Self and Andrews had a heated argument over 35 cents in the corridor outside their cell, a short time after Andrews was found slain, Deputy Warden J. E. Lindsey said. "It looked like a self-defense," Lindsey said.

DAVID ROSSER LITTLE.

DEMOCRATS MOVE TO DRAMATIC CRISIS

Impending Struggle Compared to One That Ended 16 Years of G.O.P. Rule.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—Step by step the Democratic party that in 1922 swept the nation on a scale never before recorded in American political history is moving toward an internal crisis in 1940 no less dramatic than the policy rift in Republican ranks in 1912 that ended 16 years of Republican sway in Washington.

State by state, the slow-movement and ponderous political machinery of this year's party primaries is sorting out the cast for the big 1940 show. And item by item, bill by bill, message by message, President Roosevelt is writing the lines and preparing the issues around which the drama will turn.

That he both expects and welcomes a party showdown then on the social and economic policies that make up the New Deal is indicated by every step he has taken or countenanced in the way of administration intervention in state primaries.

For months, administration political aides—from harmony-minded Postmaster General Farley down to the most bitter New Deal advocate of die-hard combat with party foes—have been dismissing the 1938 campaigning as merely a prelude to 1940.

There can be small doubt that, for those in the party machinery circles, the major interest in the 1938 contests lies in 1940 portents. Administration strategists undoubtedly take far greater interest in what the primary may mean in connection with the New Deal's possession of the party machinery than in its effect on the holding of the present number of congressional seats.

Without question, a considerable loss of seats to the Republicans would cause few regrets at the White House if it could exercise some form of selection regarding the Democrats kept in office. And so far as senatorial primaries are concerned, a process of administration selection is obviously at work, and as obviously is increasing the bitterness of the party strike. It is helping along materially a 1940 party crisis.

The NEGROES discover
MASS ACTION

ECONOMIC DISTRESS has united the Negroes, and they are beginning to learn their strength. They want jobs—and they've found a way to get them. Here's a report on how their solidarity campaign is winning jobs from storekeeper and utility magnate alike, and how Communist activity is helping them win a new place in the sun. See page 14.

How To Postpone
Another World War

WILL the next world war involve America? Probably, says philosopher Will Durant. All nations have a rendezvous with war—but Post this week, he tells you what they are, and why they would promote unity in Europe and restore world trade.
